Water, Water Everywhere...But Not for Us

By LYNN MULVANEY

KINGSTON

Ulster County's biggest export, in both bulk and tonnage, is the very thing it needs most —water.

If the county is to expand beyond its present point, it is going to need more water—50 to 60 million gallons a day more, according to Harry Edinger, Ulster County environmental sanitary engineer.

Edinger, looking forward to perhaps tapping the Catskill Aqueduct and the Rondout Tunnel, where they cross at Ireland Corners, south of New Paltz, said it possibly could be accomplished through Assemblyman H. Clark Bell who is chairman of the State Commission on Water Supply Needs of Southeastern New York.

The commission, which held its organizational meeting at Gov. Rockefeller's New York office Thursday, will study water supply needed for the area and make recommendations for increasing present water supply reserves and perfecting present delivery systems.

Presently New York City now uses 1,800 square miles of upper New York State as a watershed. Of this the Esopus Creek, above Olivebridge and the Rondout Creek above Merriman Dam are in Ulster County. This water is diverted away from Ulster County with New York City taking away water every two days that equals the contents of Coopers Lake in Lake Hill, Town of Woodstock.

Edinger proposes that Ulster tap the Catskill Aqueduct which carries 625 million gallons per day and/or the Rondout Tunnel with 400 to 600 million gallons a day at either Stone Ridge or Ireland Corners where the water supply potential is about 1½ billion gallons a day. The present formula allows water to be taken by Ulster which equais the per capita use in New York times the population served.

Special

"The formula," according to Edinger, "severely limits industrial use" and he suggests that new use and cost formulas be worked out.

Referring to New York City's proposal for taking water from the Hudson River at Hyde Park, Edinger states that unless the low flows can be augmented by storage, a salt intrusion would result to the disadvantage of Ulster County. Citing the 1960 drought, Edinger said the salt-fresh water in the river balanced out at Poughkeepsie.

Explaining further, Edinger said that there is a low input of 2,000 cubic feet of water per second at Green Island, above Kingston and 1,500 cubic feet per second below at Hyde Park.

Assemblyman Bell, who as vice chairman, is working with Virgil Conway, chairman of the commission and of the Seamen's Bank for Savings of New York City, said that "Many of us take water for granted. We turn on the tap and we expect to get plenty of good, clean water.

"However, if we are to maintain ample supplies of good water, we must start today planning for tomorrow's needs. Southeastern New York will experience a great population explosion in the next 25 years. Industrial, commercial and residential development are all dependent upon an ample supply of good quality water and good delivery systems. Our present sources and systems of delivery are adequate for today's needs; but they cannot supply tomorrow's anticipated needs.

"Today we must plan and take appropriate steps because our next generation will have deep, costly problems. The commission has the opportunity to render a great public service and I am happy to have been asked to take part in its work."

This Could Be the Start of Something Big

Israelis Are Wary Of Nasser's Stance

By United Press International

Egyptian President Gamal Abdel Nasser's speech accepting the U.S. proposal for indirect Middle East peace talks brought a wary initial reaction today from Israeli officials. They said Nasser gave no inkling he was truly interested in settling the conflict.

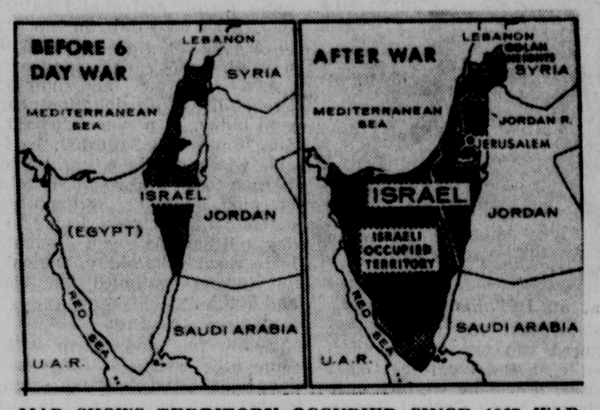

Secretary of State William P. Rogers in Washington was reported "greatly encouraged" by Egypt's decision, officially endorsed by the Soviet Union. His aides were said to be urging Israel to accept the plan despite its doubts about a three-month cease-fire.

Official Israeli spokesmen said government officials were studying the text of Nasser's speech "very carefully and we will have no comment until we have examined it thoroughly." A reply to the U.S. plan was expected from Tel Aviv next week.

Initial reactions from Israeli officials cast doubt on Nasser's sincerity, for his speech Thursday condemned Israeli air raids along the Suez Canal and assailed the United States for giving Tel Aviv warplanes. He said if peace efforts fail, "war will become the only alternative."

"There is no indication in the speech of any desire for a peaceful settlement," one Israeli government official said. "Nasser made his acceptance of the Rogers' plan conditional on Israel's withdrawal from all the occupied (Arab) territories, his line for the past three years. First study shows no new element in the speech."

U.S. officials in Washington, however, based their optimism on the fact that Nasser did not insist that the Israel withdrawal must come before a cease-fire and indirect negotiations through U.N. Mediator Gunnar V. Jarring.

MAP SHOWS TERRITORY OCCUPIED SINCE 1967 WAR

Israel has made it known it is not willing to accept the three-month cease-fire along the Suez Canal as called for by the U.S. plan because it fears the Egyptians will use the respite to buildup their air defense system and mass troops along the waterway.

Once the cease-fire is in effect, the Rogers' plan calls for talks between the belligerents through Jarring, based on the U.N. Security Council calling in part for the Israeli resolution of November, 1967, withdrawal from Arab lands captured in the 1967 war.

Israel only recently dropped its opposition to such indirect negotiations, having until then insisted on face-to-face talks, something Nasser refused. The talks, under the U.S. plan, would bring together Israel, Egypt and Jordan.

So far, Jordan, as Israel, has not replied.

Nasser reported that during his recent visit to Moscow, Soviet leaders promised to support Egypt "with defensive and offensive weapons to liberate our land." He acknowledged that "Soviet experts are now with us teaching our soldiers" but said there are no Russians fighting with the Egyptians.

He also claimed he had received "a threat and a warning from the United States that we should accept a cease-fire or else Israeli raids would continue." He said that "when modern Soviet weapons arrived in Egypt, a fuss was made," but that no American newspaper has mentioned that "Israel has 72 missile bases for defense."

Nasser said the U.S. peace proposal "could not solve anything" unless the United States halts arms sales to Israel.

'Double or Nothing' Plan On Hudson River Bridges

KINGSTON

The 12 crossings over the Hudson River will go on a "double or nothing" toll system beginning Aug. 12. Motorists will pay twice the fare heading east and cross for "free" coming back westbound.

The unique plan was devised to speedup traffic by cutting toll collections in half. There were 181 million crossings in 1969.

In the case of the Kingston-Rhinecliff Bridge a motorist will pay twice the usual 25-cent fare when crossing east into Rhinebeck but will not be stopped for a fare on his way back to Kingston.

Three state authorities, operating 12 bridges from the Outerbridge Crossing on Staten Island to the Rip Van Winkle Bridge at Catskill, the New York State Bridge Authority, the New York State Thruway Authority and the Port of New York Authority, announced the change today.

Under the new one-stop procedure, operators of all vehicles will pay a round trip toll on their eastbound trip thereby eliminating the need to stop to pay a toll on the westbound trip. Surveys conducted by the Bridge Authority have demonstrated that practically all vehicles make round trip crossings.

The New York State Bridge Authority is the local agency, operating five bridges, the Kingston-Rhinecliff Bridge, the Rip Van Winkle Bridge, the Mid-Hudson Bridge at Poughkeepsie, the Newburgh-Beacon Bridge and the Bear Mountain Bridge.

The Tappan Zee Bridge is operated by the thruway authority and the George Washington Bridge, Lincoln Tunnel, Holland Tunnel, Bayone Bridge, Goethals Bridge and the Outerbridge Crossing are operated by the Port of New York Authority.

Motorists using commutation books will surrender two tickets on their eastbound trip until the authority obtains new commutation books which will provide for one ticket to be used on the eastbound trip.

The local authority says that the adoption of the one-way toll collection system will reduce the overall toll collecting staff but that no toll collector will lose his job. "The new system will result in operating economies which will help offset the increased operating costs that the authority has experienced in recent years. Other savings will be made as toll collecting equipment and other related items will be available for use on the eastbound lanes," a spokesman said.

Authority officials expressed little concern about the possibility of some motorists trying to "beat the system" in an effort to cross for free. It is possible to cross the Kingston Bridge from the west, drive up to Albany and cross back over Dunn Memorial Bridge which is toll-free. The motorists would be getting a "free" crossing if he doesn't figure the time and fuel involved in that evasive route. An authority spokesman said that any such situations would apply to only a tiny fraction of the persons who use the bridges and tunnels involved.

The new setup should make it a lot easier for commuters working in New York City to get home as they will not have to stop to pay tolls. The reverse is true, locally, where numerous persons from northern Dutchess County working at IBM in Kingston and other west bank industries will have to stop to pay a fare on their way home. On the other hand, local commuters crossing the Kingston-Rhinecliff Bridge should be able to get to work faster.

The new system will go into effect on all 12 crossings at 2 a.m. on Wednesday, Aug. 12. The adoption of the plan at all crossings, according to the state bridge authority, at the same time was necessary to avoid an imbalance in the respective traffic flows.

Westward Ho For President

WASHINGTON (AP) — Richard Nixon's latest President-to-people foray found him bound today for North Dakota and Utah for meetings with assorted Republicans, one Democrat and leaders of the Mormon church.

Nixon, reactivating the Western White House near his seaside villa at San Clemente, Calif., for about 10 days, arranged stops along his westward route at Fargo, N.D., and Salt Lake City.

The Fargo layover was for a conference with the governors of five upper plains states—North Dakota, South Dakota, Minnesota, Iowa and Nebraska.

The Chief Executive, who has said he will consider no partisan undertakings in this election year—at least until October—meets with four Republican governors and one Democrat—host governor William L. Guy of North Dakota.

In addition to Guy, the welcoming party lined up at Fargo's Hector Airport included three House members from Minnesota and South Dakota—all Republicans.

The President and Mrs. Nixon's visit to Salt Lake City includes a meeting with the First Presidency of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints and other church leaders in the administration building near the famed Mormon Tabernacle.

Before meeting with the churchmen, however, Nixon was to be greeted at Salt Lake City International Airport by Utah Republicans Sen. Wallace Bennett and Rep. Lawrence J. Burton.

Public motorcades were set up in both Fargo and Salt Lake City—a followup to recent successful presidential visits through street crowds in St. Louis and Louisville, Ky.

Since his visit to St. Louis last month, where he received the warmest welcome of his presidency, Nixon obviously had seemed to embark on a calculated travel program around the country to bring him in contact with the populous in, to date relatively trouble-free cities.

Today also marks the 123rd anniversary of the discovery of the Salt Lake Valley by the Mormon pioneers and is a state holiday. One of the big events will be a "Pioneer Day Stampede," or rodeo, in the capital city's Salt Palace.

The President and Mrs. Nixon promised to witness at least some of the rodeo events.

When the Nixons return to Washington Aug. 3, they will stop in Denver for a presidential meeting with the heads of state agencies planning programs utilizing federal aid to local police forces and courts.

Rudd, 12 Others Indicted

Crackdown on Weathermen

DIANNE DONGHI, 21, IS TAKEN FROM FBI HEADQUARTERS TO THE HOUSE OF DETENTION. (UPI TELEPHOTO)

DETROIT (UPI) — Seven months ago, leaders of the radical Weatherman group met in a grimy Flint, Mich., ballroom for a winter "war council" to plan for the 1970s.

Newsmen were barred. But leader Mark Rudd, speaking through a bullet hole in a door, predicted violence "that will make the 60's look like a Sunday school picnic."

Thursday, a federal grand jury here charged Rudd and 12 other members conspired to commit assassinations and bombings in four U.S. cities during the four-day meeting at the giant ballroom.

The indictment charged the group met in Flint to set up a coordinating agency to guide bombing by underground "focal" groups in Chicago, Detroit, New York City and Berkeley. Three persons later died in the explosion of a Weatherman "bomb factory" in Greenwich Village in New York and another explosives cache was found in Chicago.

Linda Sue Evans, 23, Fort Dodge, Iowa, who was apprehended after the Chicago indictment, was one of those indicted Thursday.

Thursday, two of the 13 named in the Detroit indictment were apprehended by FBI agents.

Dianne Marie Donghi, 21, was arrested in New York. The FBI did not say where she was arrested, but she will be arraigned in U.S. Court in Manhattan later today.

The FBI in Chicago arrested Russell Todd Neufeld, in the city's old town section on the near North Side. He was to be arraigned today.

Weatherman leaders went "underground" after the Chicago indictments. Assistant Attorney General Will R. Wilson, chief of the Justice Department's Criminal Division, said, "We expect to arrest some of them, but will not probably get them all. I expect we will catch seven or eight, possibly 10."

Bond for each of the accused was set at $35,000 to $75,000 by U.S. District Court Judge Lawrence Gubow.

Those named in the indict ment included:

Miss Evans, 23, a former Michigan State University student and SDS organizer in Detroit who traveled to North Vietnam last summer in a group to bring back downed American fliers; Rudd, 23, a leader in the 1968 Columbia University student revolt; Bernadine Rae Dohrn, 28, lately of Oak Park, Ill., and a 1965 graduate of the University of Chicago Law School; William Charles Ayres, 25, lately of Chicago, a former University of Michigan student and former boyfriend of Diana Oughton, one of those named as a co-conspirator who was killed in the Greenwich Village blast.

Kathie Boudin, 27, lately of Chicago, who was sought by New York police for questioning in the townhouse explosion and listed as a co-conspirator on riot charges after the Democratic National Convention; Cathlyn Platt Wilkerson, lately of Chicago; Miss Donghi.

Festival, Vols Convention Keeping Authorities Alert

By ALBERT J. CAWEIN
SAUGERTIES

Police authorities are preparing to cope with all eventualities in the Saugerties area relative to the Woodstock Sound Festival scheduled Saturday night at Shultis Corners as well as the influx of hundreds of volunteer firemen for the annual convention.

Meanwhile a request for a preliminary injunction to allow the Sound Festival to operate without a town permit is being heard in State Supreme Court today before Justice Edward S. Conway. A show cause order was served on Town Clerk Marion Newkirk Thursday directing the town to show cause at the hearing, why a preliminary injunction should not be issued to enjoin the town from enforcing its Local Law No. 5.

Local Law No. 5 requires that promoters of an assemblage for over 200 must secure a permit from the town. The application for Saturday night's event was denied last week by the Town Board. The order, according to Festival attorney William C. Mullany challenges the constitutionality of the local law and asks for a temporary injunction to permit the festival to operate until the merits of the challenge can be determined by the high court.

Late yesterday Saugerties Town Police Chief Charles P. Riley and members of the town force met to discuss the handling of large groups, traffic and enforcement problems which might arise because of the two events scheduled in Saugerties this weekend.

Arrangements were discussed for coping with traffic problems during the six-division firemens parade from Barclay Heights through the Village of Saugerties on Saturday and at Cantine Field where the parade will disband.

Chief Riley said 24 town police officers and two matrons will be on duty and the County Sheriff's Department will also have four men in the area to assist wherever possible.

Chief Riley said arrangements have been made to have the police lines at the Town Hall open to receive calls at 246-2800 in order to dispatch police cars to any trouble spots by radio.

He said no trouble is expected at the festival and traffic congestion experienced during the July 4 weekend will be avoided.

Riley noted that no parking will be allowed along town or state highways in the festival area. Signs have been posted and all violations will be enforced.

No one would say whether or not the Sound Festival would be held if the court denies the injunction. However Supervisor A. Michael Schovel said Tuesday that the town would keep the situation under strict surveillance and that the local law would be enforced.

This would indicate that if the promoters fail to get the green light from Supreme Court and proceed with the festival, town authorities will conduct a head count at the festival gate and as soon as more than 200 are admitted they will move to enforce the local law.

Two Area Drug Cases Growing, Possession

GREENVILLE

A Long Island man was taken into custody Thursday by Leeds State Police, accused of growing marijuana on his summer home property in this Green County township and criminal possession of dangerous drugs sixth degree.

In another narcotics case yesterday, New Paltz Village Police arrested a 20-year-old youth after they found him in possession of heroin.

BCI Investigator C. J. Bebensee arrested Richard Morton of 645 West Market Street, Long Beach, on charges of growing marijuana in violation of the Public Health Law, and possessing narcotics. Authorities said the man had a patch of marijuana growing on his land.

Troopers confiscated the plants, it was reported, and arraigned Morton before Greenville Town Justice John J. Verplank. The defendant was released on $50 bail pending a hearing later. The arrest was made on a warrant that was issued after state police checked a complaint that the plants were seen by residents.

In New Paltz, Patrolman Wayne O'Brien arrested Vincent Enzmann of North Elting Road, Highland, on charges of disorderly conduct and criminal possession of dangerous drugs in the sixth degree. Police said the youth had a quantity of heroin in his possession when picked up in the village at 7:50 p. m. yesterday.

Enzmann was arraigned before New Paltz Town Justice Rexford Schneider. He pleaded innocent to both charges and was held in $350 bail pending a hearing in justice's court on July 31.

'Tommy the Traveler' Held as Material Witness

CANANDAIGUA, N.Y. (AP) — Undercover police agent Thomas "Tommy the Traveler" Tongyai was in jail today—held as a material witness in a state probe of disorders at Hobart College.

Tongyai's lawyer, Edward Monahan, termed the jailing of Tongyai as a material witness was "unjust, unrealistic and unconstitutional." Tongyai said he was "bewildered."

Judge T. Paul Kane, presiding at the special investigation, okayed a state request that Tongyai be held as a material witness. The jurist set bail at $7,500 — half the $15,000 bond asked by the state.

Attorneys Leon Armer and E. Garrett Cleary, the state lawyers heading the probe, asked that Tongyai be named a material witness. They said only that they wanted to be sure he would be around when called as a witness.

Tongyai worked for the Ontario County sheriff as an undercover agent earlier this year.

Students at Hobart College in nearby Geneva said he was a familiar figure on campus.

Last June 5 Tongyai's affiliation with the sheriff's office came out in the open when Tongyai, other deputies and police staged a drug raid on campus.

Hundreds of students surrounded the police and smashed their patrol cars. Authorities, saying they feared even more serious trouble, released five student prisoners and promised them amnesty. Police left the campus empty-handed.

The incident stirred resentment among citizens of Geneva. Later, a number of students were arrested on riot charges stemming from the June 5 confrontation.

Three of the arrested students filed suit against law enforcement officers, charging an inadequate investigation of the trouble and contending police harrassed them during and after their arrests.

The suit also charged that Tongyai had tried to talk some of the students into using explosives to damage campus buildings and contended Tongyai urged them to use drugs.

The special probe in an extraordinary term of State Supreme Court began July 13.

Peoria Violence: Three Are Wounded

PEORIA, Ill. (UPI)—Three persons were wounded by gunfire in a clash between police and young Negroes in two neighborhoods Thursday night.

Mayor E. Michael O'Brien declared a state of emergency and ordered a curfew for all persons under 21. At least 26 persons were arrested.

The violence began after Peoria County deputies served eviction notices on two women at a black housing project and arrested one of them. Blacks moved furniture back into apartments and rock and bottle-throwing began.

Later, young blacks fired at police cars and into bars. A fire, attributed to arson destroyed the offices of the housing project early today.

State police moved into Peoria Thursday night and the situation quieted early today. Besides the curfew for young people, O'Brein also closed taverns and stopped the sale of gasoline in containers.

There were few incidents until about 7 p.m. when members of the "Black Rangers" drove around the near South Side and allegedly opened fire at police cars. Police said they did not return the fire, later shots were fired into several taverns, including the Mickey Mouse Tavern and the 901 Club.

Three men suffered shotgun wounds.

Pepria, in Central Illinois, has 129,000 persons, about 10 per cent of them black.

Some Advice for the President On Youth and Campus Unrest

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Presidents rarely are given blunt, critical lectures in public by their own advisers. But two men serving President Nixon have told him he better start listening to and talking with students, blacks and dissenters or the country is in big trouble.

Such advice coming from the partisan opposition or given by political intimates in the privacy of the Oval Office would be no surprise. But Nixon got this word from two educators he chose to advise him on youth and campus unrest, and the President himself choose to make it public.

The White House released the recommendations of Alexander Heard, chancellor of Vanderbilt University, and James Cheek, president of Howard University, Thursday. It also took the unusual step of making public the texts of private memoranda submitted to Nixon by Heard and Cheek during the two-month period that followed the Cambodian invasion and the subsequent campus protests.

"We do not believe that our national government really understands that a national crisis confronts ... they wrote on June 19.

"The young may be trying to tell us things we ought to hear," they said on July 6. "You should have the chance to evaluate first-hand the assumptions of those who reach different conclusions from yours about Southeast Asia."

"Some realists might well ask whether the students, faculties, blacks and the others warrant all this energy and emphasis. They do," the same memo said. "Time and again in the world's history, ideas have prevailed over other forms of power, from the teachings of Jesus through those of Tom Paine and Karl Marx to those of Adolf Hitler. Intellectual power is at work in new ways in the United States."

The memos released by the White House were edited to delete a number of specific recommendations. In his statement the Vanderbilt chancellor said the detailed proposals were kept private because disclosure might handicap carrying them out.

The memos were not entirely sympathetic to students. Heard said by attempting to silence opposing views, some students "are guilty of a brand of repression of their own," a kind of "virulent anti-intellectualism."

Blacks Honor One of Own

LAWRENCE, Kan. (UPI) — The sound of the two ponies' hooves hitting the pavement was the only noise in the otherwise still afternoon.

They pulled a miniature wagon carrying a coffin draped in a red, black and green flag. The coffin held the body of Rick Donald Dowdell.

"Dowdell was a soldier," Jake Mumford, one of the pallbearers, said. "He was a symbol. By that I mean he was a man. Tiger (Dowdell) was caged like all of us are caged. The man is gone. But the symbol is here."

Only blacks marched in the parade to honor one of their own, slain last week by a city policeman. The official mourners dressed in denim jackets. Some were sad. Some were angry. All were quiet.

And across town the white activists in the University of Kansas community marched from the campus to downtown on the sunny Thursday afternoon.

They too were quiet. They also honored Dowdell. But they also paid homage to a university student — Nicholas Rice—slain Monday night during a battle between the activists and police. They carried two signs:

"Nick Rice, 1952-1970, murdered by Lawrence pigs"

"Rick Dowdell, 1951-1970, murdered by Lawrence pigs"

Who killed Rice is not known. The bullet from which he died never has been recovered.

Dowdell's slayer has been exonerated by a grand jury which said the police officer fired at Dowdell only after the youth shot at the policeman.

The march did not draw much attention until it reached the downtown area, where residents shop at sidewalk bazaars.

"This is America?" said one woman pointing at the marchers, most of whom sported long hair.

"Dowdell's death was the price of freedom," said the Rev. Lee Benefee of Milwaukee, Wis., dressed in a brightly-colored Afro robe. "Everybody thinks we should stand up on the cross and let the white folks nail our hands to the cross."

Ed Down, a white man who lives across the street from the church, erected a sign in his front yard Thursday morning. It said:

"Law abiding blacks want our respect. Let us all prepare ourselves to give it to them."

City Man Cited After Accident

KINGSTON, Union Street, Oneonta, was released pending arraignment in City Court. According to a police report, Smith made a left turn from East Chester Street into Broadway when he lost control and his car hit a parked vehicle owned by John L. Eigo of 317 Broadway.

A 74-year-old man was cited shortly after 2 a.m. today for allegedly driving a motor vehicle while intoxicated, following a mishap on Broadway north of East Chester Street.

Motorist Hurt, Car Overturns On Thruway

NEW PALTZ

A New Jersey man was seriously injured shortly before 2:30 p.m. Thursday when his car went out of control and overturned on the State Thruway about six miles south of this township.

Newburgh Thruway State Police reported Frang Chandler, 56, of 610 Alaham Road, Ridgewood, N. J., was northbound on the superhighway when he reportedly went in insulin shock and lost control of the car.

Chandler was taken to St. Luke's Hospital in Newburgh by Fatum's New Paltz Ambulance Service. Troopers said the man was later transferred to Vassar Hospital in Poughkeepsie. He suffered a fractured skull and multiple internal injuries, authorities said. Troopers said Chandler was a diabetic.

Bus Scheduled To Middletown

KINGSTON

The Ulster County Association for Mental Health, which is a Community Chest agency, is sponsoring its regularly monthly bus to Middletown State Hospital, Wednesday, July 29.

The bus will leave Kingston from the Park Diner at 11:45 a.m., from The Elms in Rosendale at 12 noon, and from the Grand Union, North Chestnut Street, New Paltz, at 12:10 p.m. It can stop at other points on the route which goes through Wallkill provided arrangements have been made in advance with the Association. The bus returns to Kingston by 5:30 p.m.

A moderate charge is made for the service, but anyone who cannot meet the cost may contact Mrs. Diana M. Geiger at the Association office, 27 East O'Reilly Street, Kingston. The office is open Tuesdays, Wednesdays and Fridays from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Rams Police Car In Escape Try From Drug Raid

BUFFALO (AP) — Police said a student rammed a police car with his auto Thursday night in a futile attempt to escape after a drug raid at his home.

Officers said Michael Teague, 22, a music student at the State University at Buffalo, was collared in his auto after the crash. Two officers in the car suffered slight injuries in the crash, but returned to duty after treatment at a hospital.

Police said 100 glassine bags of heroin, valued at $2,500 on the illicit market, were found in a raid at Teague's home. They said Teague was not at home, but was spotted in his auto later, triggering a chase that ended with the crash.

CHERRY VALLEY, N.Y. (AP) — The motorcycles lined the narrow shaded street, idling quietly but for the bursts of new starting engines and then moved on slowly in the funeral procession for a man of the road.

The column passed the white clapboard church and followed the man several miles through gently rolling hills to a rural cemetery.

Two by two they rode along the dirt road at the base of the ridge, along which the family of Philip Knoetgen, 22, had arrived.

They wore ragtag clothes of denim and leather and an occasional earring, dirtied and oily men of the road who called themselves brothers and would say only that this dead man, Knoetgen, was a brother, with them. He had been killed in a motorcycle accident.

The men, there were 70, waited in the sun of the cemetery until the priest's service was concluded and the family returned to the top of the ridge and the polished cars in which they had come.

The men walked in boots through the short loose grass, without the ceremony of organized movement. They filed into a circular line around the casket. Into the hole they dropped special things—an iron cross, a button, objects of good luck and baubles that made their clothes special and personal uniforms.

After all the men completed the circle they walked down from the burial place. One man, he had blond hair, a tall, stout man of maybe 25, stood by a tree near the grave. Another man, younger and wearing denims, had his arms around the bigger man who was weeping. The blond man turned away from the place, not talking, his face wet, not speaking.

They had come from Texas and Florida and Virginia on the word of mouth.

Billy Joe, leader of all Pagans, sat on a low slung motorcycle and talked briefly and tenderly, but he would not talk about Philip, nor would the other men.

"He told his mother that if he ever got killed he wanted his people here...to where he was dead. He is our brother and these people, his mother, they understand this and they invited us, Billy Joe said. "We would have come anyway, but they invited us."

"He was our brother...that's all there's nothing to say about him." The men said they did not want to try to describe Philip because as a brother, he was a whole and not to be divided into the pieces that words make. "There won't be none of that," said another Pagan.

"Pagans is all kinds of people, Jews, Pentecostals, Catholics, you name it, but all one thing and when one of us gets killed we go to his funeral and if one of us gets in trouble we go there too. We're all brothers. That's all."

Billy Joe, he was perhaps 30, said there had been no trouble for the Pagans in Cherry Valley. He wore long blond hair and a felt hat, a vest over a shirt with no collar and patched and stained denim trousers.

"When the cops would stop us for not wearing crash helmets, we told them we were going to a funeral and they knew and there was no trouble, nothing bad."

Billy Joe leaned forward on his motorcycle. "This is something nice, something special," he said.

"You know, the family invited us over to the house. There's something ... really special. But we won't go. It would get out of hand. We would all be there and it would sort of get out of hand. Things get funny like that, even when you don't want it to be like that."

The "Pagans" mounted their motorcycles and rode out to the asphalt highway. The dust swirled behind them.

NOTICE OF SALE
Index Number 76/1970

Pursuant to judgment dated April 22, 1970, I will sell at public auction on July 31, 1970 at 11:00 in the forenoon on the front steps of the Court House, Kingston, New York, the following described property.

ALL that certain plot, piece or parcel of land, with the buildings and improvements thereon erected, situate, lying and being in the Town of Wawarsing, County of Ulster and State of New York, being a part of Great Lot No. 6 of the Drowned Lands Tract in a 100 acre subdivision thereof conveyed by Virgil Hixon and wife to Maria V. Elmore by deed dated June 25th, 1841, recorded in Ulster County Clerk's Office in Liber of Deeds No. 57, at page 36 on the 5th day of July, 1841.

BEGINNING at the intersection of the center line of the Beaver Dam Public Highway leading from Ulster Heights along the northeasterly side of Ulster Heights Lake, with the division line between Great Lot 6 and Great Lot 7 on the northwest side thereof. This point is herein designated as corner No. 0-3 of the lot conveyed; the center of a hemlock tree 16 inches overstands S. 45° 40' W. 16.5 feet, and the center of the end of a stone wall stands N. 45° 40' E. 16.5 feet from this point of beginning.

Thence from said intersection and corner 0-3 on a course of S. 32° 36' E. along the center line of said Beaver Dam Highway a distance of 288.6 feet to angle 1, at the center of a plank bridge over a large brook flowing across the northerly corner of the lot hereby conveyed into the said Ulster Heights Lake.

Thence from angle 1 along said center line, at an angle left 8° 10' a distance of 278.0 feet to angle 2; Right 12° 33' 154.5 feet to angle 3; Right 14° 28' 230.2 feet to angle 4, the junction of the said Beaver Dam center line with the center line of the Ulster Heights and Lackawack public highway, at about opposite the center of the private driveway running southeast into the grounds of Rosedale Cottage.

Thence from said junction and said angle 4, along the center line of said Ulster Heights and Lackawack Highway at an angle Right 51° 11' 181.1 feet to Corner No. 1 of the lot conveyed, a point on the said center line west from the center of the end of a stone wall at the southeast bounds of said highway, northwesterly to the most westerly corner of the lot hereby conveyed on a course of N. 44° 20' W.

Thence from said corner No. 1 at an angle Right 96° 54' W. to said line and course of N. 44° 20' W. along a wire fence generally, a distance of 1021.1 feet to the aforesaid division line between Great Lots 6 and 7 and corner 2 of the lot conveyed, this corner 2 is about 200 feet into the waters of said Ulster Heights Lake, from its southeasterly shore line, at this date; thence from corner 2 at an angle Right 90° 0' and on a corner of N. 45° 40' E. along the said division line between said Great Lots 6 and 7, 440.0 feet to the point of beginning and corner No. 0-3, the closing angle is 103° 04'; the included area is 7.84 acres, including highways from the center line thereof to their northwest bounds amounting to 46/100 acre.

All distances are horizontal, magnetic courses as of the 16th day of August, 1938, all as surveyed by William F. Dutton, Prof. En'gr. & Land Surveyor, Ellenville, N. Y.

EXCEPTING AND RESERVING from said premises described, such part thereof and such rights therein as were conveyed to Dwight Divine by Peter Beilman and Barbara, his wife, by deed dated October 13, 1906 and recorded in the Ulster County Clerk's Office in Liber of Deeds No. 398, at page 249 on the 16th day of October, 1906.

ALSO subject to the easement of said Ulster Heights and Beaver Dam and Ulster Heights and Lackawack Highways, from their center line thereof to their northwest bounds; both roads being Town Roads, of a width of two rods.

Being a part of the premises conveyed to Moses Kreitzer by Ida Glazer by deed dated July 18, 1922 and recorded in Ulster County Clerk's Office July 27, 1922 in Liber 490 of Deeds at page 516.

ALSO subject to the easement and right of way for poles and line of Ellenville Electric Company and New York Telephone Company.

Being a portion of the premises conveyed by John Weiss and Sadie Weiss, his wife, to Brook Lake Heights, Inc., mortgagor herein, by deed dated July 1, 1957 and recorded in Ulster County Clerk's Office October 29, 1957 in Liber 1017 of Deeds at page 538.

Mafia, Cosa Nostra Word Usage Banned

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Attorney General John N. Mitchell, with President Nixon's approval, has banned the terms "Mafia" and "Cosa Nostra" from the government's vocabulary.

Mitchell said the terms are offensive to many Italian-Americans, and they will not be used in future government news releases, speeches or other public statements.

Mitchell prefers the term "organized crime."

A spokesman said Mitchell had received numerous complaints about the terminology, particularly from Italian-Americans who complained their children were taunted with the term "Mafia" by their schoolmates.

The most graphic complaint was a rally of 100,000 persons July 9 against FBI headquarters in New York, led by Joseph Colombo Sr., an alleged Mafia member, who is under indictment for income tax evasion. They protested alleged police and FBI persecution of Italian-Americans. A Justice Department spokesman denied any connection between the Colombo rally and Mitchell's Thursday announcement.

In a memo to all heads of divisions, offices, boards, bureaus and agencies on Thursday, Mitchell said:

"It has become increasingly clear that many good Americans of Italian descent are offended by the use of the terms Mafia and Cosa Nostra. They feel that the use of these Italian terms reflects adversely on Italian-Americans generally, and there is no doubt that their concern is genuine and sincere."

"Accordingly, since there is nothing to be gained by using these terms except to give gratuitous offense, I am requesting that we discontinue their use in news releases, speeches or other public statements of this department and its components."

With obvious emphasis he added: "I have discussed this question with the President who concurs in this view."

Police Probing Fire of Barn At Fish Creek

CENTERVILLE

A fire that destroyed a vacant frame barn in the vicinity of Patch and Fish Creek Roads, Town of Saugerties, early today is under investigation by authorities.

Fire Chief Thomas Brennan of Centerville Fire Company, said the alarm was sounded at 1:40 a.m. and when the first unit of volunteers arrived they saw flames shooting through the roof of the structure. Brennan said firemen shuttled water from Fish Creek and wet down the roof of a nearby residence to prevent flying sparks and burning embers from igniting the building.

Assistant Chief Joseph Dengler was in charge of firefighters from the local company and Cedar Grove. Chief Brennan arrived later on his return from the firemen's convention.

The property is owned by Mrs. Edith Eeinzmann of Bellrose, L. I. The origin of the blaze was not determined. Fire units reported back in service at 3:45 a.m.

Panther Trial Testimony— Kimbro Fired First Shot

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (UPI)— Black Panther Warren Kimbro, who has pleaded guilty to second-degree murder in the torture slaying of Alex Rackley, testified Thursday he fired the first bullet into the head of the alleged police informer.

Kimbro said two national officers of the Black Panther party—Rory B. Hithe and Landon Williams — ordered Kimbro, George Sams and Lonnie McLucas to do the killing.

McLucas, the defendant, is charged with kidnaping and conspiracy to commit murder in the death of Rackley, whose body was found in a Middlefield swamp May 21, 1969. Seven other Panthers, including National Chairman Bobby G. Seale, also are charged in the case but they will be tried later.

Kimbro, on the stand in Superior Court for the second day Thursday, described how he, McLucas and Sams walked single-file behind Rackley through the woods, stopping at a swampy area.

"George Sams said 'now!' after we walked on a little ways," Kimbro testified.

"George handed me the .45 and I took the safety off. He said 'This is for national.' "

"I pulled the trigger," Kimbro said. Asked by the prosecution attorney where he shot Rackley, Kimbro said "right behind the head."

He said the three of them then left the scene and after a moment McLucas went back and fired another shot into Rackley.

Kimbro said Hithe and Williams gave the orders to kill Rackley after hearing tape recordings of Rackley's alleged "confession" he was a police informer. The tapes were allegedly made a few hours before Rackley was shot.

Kimbro, holding a transcript of the tape recordings, identified each speaker as the two 25-minute tapes were played to the court.

Three Teenagers Hurt in Accident

ESOPUS

Three teenagers were injured in a one car accident at 10:45 Thursday night when the driver lost control while passing another car on Rt. 9W in Ulster Park.

Taken to Kingston Hospital was the driver Lawrence E. Quick, 17, of 82 Wrentham Street, Kingston who sustained multiple abrasions and bruises and arrested for being an unsupervised learner, using speed not reasonable and prudent and improper passing.

Also taken to Kingston Hospital by Doctors Ambulance was James Keating, 18, of 313 Main Street, Kingston who suffered head, back and leg injuries.

Also injured was another passenger, Philip Cassidy, 17, of Box 361, Glenerie Lake Park.

According to a report of Deputy Terence G. Carle, Quick was passing another car when he became blinded by lights of an oncoming vehicle. Quick left the highway on the left handside and came to a halt in a field 50 feet from the road.

Subdivision Law Hearing Slated At Shawangunk

WALLKILL

A public hearing on proposed amendments to the Town of Shawangunk subdivision regulations will be held Tuesday, Aug. 4 from 7 to 8 p.m. at the town hall in Wallkill, it was announced at the regular monthly meeting of the Town Planning Board recently.

An informational meeting on the same topic was held earlier this week at the Walker Valley Firehouse.

The amendments, according to town officials, include additions, deletions and corrections, most of which have already been discussed by board members.

Following services at Temple Emanuel, 243 Albany Avenue tonight, the Oneg Shabbat will be sponsored by Dr. and Mrs. Walter Levy in honor of their daughter's forthcoming marriage. Services begin at 7:30 p.m. All may attend.

Rounding Off Fares To Add $50 Million

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's airlines may stand to make nearly $50 million a year more under their recently granted authority to round fares upward to the nearest dollar.

The airlines say the new tax rate will take a $10 million bite out of the additional revenue.

On jet airliners that annual charge is $25 per plane, plus 3½ cents a pound. On piston-engine aircraft the fee is $25 a year, plus 2 cents a pound.

The simplified fares went into effect for a two-month trial period July 1, when the federal tax was raised.

The CAB authorized scheduled airlines to raise existing fares by sufficient penny amounts to provide a new total, including tax, in even dollars.

Most of the airlines have asked the CAB to continue the fare-adjustment authority indefinitely, beyond its Aug. 31 expiration date.

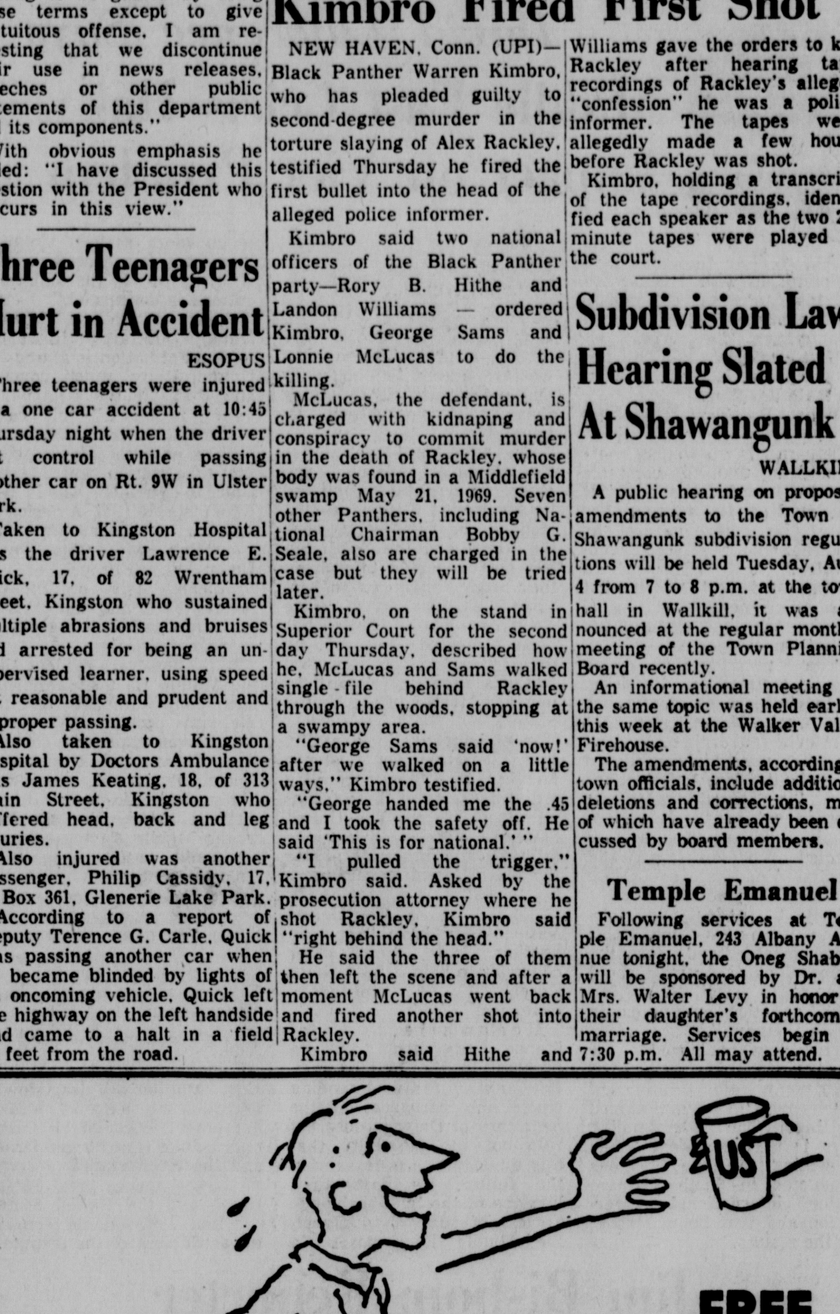

The CAB asked the airlines to estimate the annual revenue increase and also to indicate their anticipated annual payments under the aircraft use tax.

Not all the airlines submitted estimates of the tax, but those that did included United, $2.6 million; Eastern, $1.5 million; American, $1.4 million; Delta, $930,000; Continental, $360,000; Braniff, $538,000; Frontier, $140,000; North Central, $106,000; Piedmont, $100,000; Ozark, $89,000; Alaska, $50,000; Aloha, $20,000.

The largest airline, United, estimated that its 1971 added revenue from the change would total about $11.5 million.

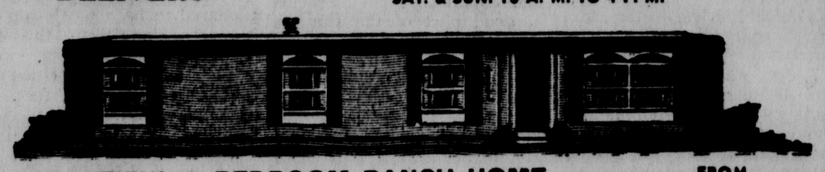

American set its 1971 probable yield at $8.2 million, and estimated the amount for the last half of 1970 at $4 million.

Other revenue estimates, for one-year periods, include: Eastern, $5.2 million; Delta, $5 million; Braniff, $1.8 million; Continental, $1.57 million; Western, $1.56 million; North Central, $1.4 million; Ozark, $1 million; Piedmont, $746,000; Aloha, $368,000; Alaska, $51,100.

Infant Mortality

In 1968, the latest year for which figures are available, the infant mortality rate in this country was 27.7 in 1,000. This is higher than the rate of a dozen other countries, led by Sweden, with a rate of 12.9 per 1,000. In other words, new-born infants have almost twice as poor a chance of surviving their first year here as in Sweden, and varying less than the other countries.

The usual, false, assumption is that high infant mortality in the United States is due to the fact that large numbers of black babies are lost in infancy. Dr. Frank Falkner, associate director of the National Institute of Child Health and Human Development, U.S. National Institutes of Health, disputes this assumption. Since only 15 per cent of the population is black, excluding them would make the rate only two points lower, he points out, in fact, some poor whites have higher infant mortality rates.

To improve the chances for life and health for infants born in America, Dr. Falkner calls for relief of social and economic disadvantages—poverty, nutrition, including promotion of breast feeding, home and family conditions, sanitation, and some solution of the problem of illegitimacy. Of all these factors, nutrition of families is the one most amenable to immediate improvement. This is something to which the Nixon administration is committed. Also, public information on pre-natal care and the care of the newly born infant should be more widely disseminated. It was in the early days of the Children's Bureau, pioneering such information, when the infant mortality rate dropped dramatically.

World Youth Assembly

The first World Youth Assembly, an eight-day conference of people from 130 countries and territories, called to bring youth and idealism into the celebration of the 25th anniversary of the founding of the United Nations, was a bust. Organized vaguely to allow governments to permit youth groups to pick participants 25 and under, the pro-Communist countries sent men 40 to 45 who dominated the proceedings by being well organized and leaving nothing to chance.

The result was a demonstration of Communist influence and power. For instance, the commission on Man and Environment dealt seriously with drug abuse and family planning. So did the commission on education. But pro-Communists took the stage in the Commissions on Development and World Peace. They condemned American intervention in the Dominican Republic unanimously but divided 73 to 71 on Soviet intervention in Czechoslovakia.

The assembly was a disappointment also because youth, who were to develop their own new attitudes toward world problems, simply echoed those of their elders. If they had any fresh ideas and insights into the problems that have baffled the world, they kept them to themselves. Or they were kept from stating them by the pro-Communist groups who shouted down or booed, catcalled, and table-pounded into silence whatever they did not like.

The cost of bringing together the first youth assembly of $900,000 was a waste. It surely will be the last, for the United States, which pays the major share of United Nations costs, should not fund another of these miserable shows of hate and disillusionment.

David Lawrence Says
Middle East Crisis Has Impact on Viet Problem

WASHINGTON — The Vietnam War shows signs of winding up with a cease-fire. It may take several months of negotiation at the Paris Conference. The current talk about elections and a coalition government is not likely to remain an issue.

What President Thieu has just said in a speech in South Vietnam is perhaps more significant than any comment he has made thus far. He declared that a cease-fire must be controlled by an international "referee committee." He reiterated a pledge made last October that his government is willing to discuss with the Communists conditions of a cease-fire.

The practicalities were really outlined by President Nixon in his press conference this week. He asserted that whatever government is set up after peace is established must be the result of elections and "is something to be worked out by the people of South Vietnam and by the elected representatives and elected leaders of South Vietnam." He added:

"But under no circumstances does this government stand for the proposition that we would attempt to negotiate an imposed coalition government in South Vietnam."

This does not provide for any elections in North Vietnam nor mention the form of government to be maintained in Hanoi. The understanding here is that President Thieu is willing to have elections conducted in South Vietnam under international supervision and that he will abide by the results.

But will the Communists let elections be held in South Vietnam? Will they cease their acts of terrorism? Or will they regard any armistice as merely a prohibition against warfare across the boundary and not necessarily anything that could block their intrigues?

The situation is not unlike that which prevails in Korea, where an armistice negotiated by the United Nations in 1953 stopped the fighting between the North and the South but has not been able to prevent the many instances of infiltration that have since occurred. South Korea has been protected, however, by the presence of United Nation's forces, comprised mostly of troops of the United States.

It so happens, incidentally, that Secretary of Defense Melvin Laird has orders to withdraw some of these troops now from Korea. The United States is offering to continue military and financial aid to the South Korean government, but the latter is not too happy about the outlook. The United Nations may have to put in another force from other countries to help defend South Korea if an emergency develops.

Meanwhile, the United States finds itself with a problem in the Middle east. It is anxious to avoid sending troops into that area, but the Secretary of Defense does not rule out the possibilty that this might prove necessary in the future. He says that, because of the buildup by the Soviets of support to Egypt, the Middle East poses "a much more serious situation than we face in Southeast Asia, as far as the long-term outlook is concerned."

The President himself frankly declares that the mideast situation is giving the United States much concern and that "if the balance of power is upset," this could have the effect of causing nations on both sides possibly "to take action which could lead to another war." Mr. Nixon states that America is anxious to avoid any confrontation with the Soviet Union in Europe or in Southeast Asia or in the Middle East and that this is why emphasis is being placed on peace initiatives.

It is, however, evident that the Middle East situation has had some impact on the Vietnam problem. The war has proved expensive to both Red China and the Soviet Union. It is not, therefore, likely that Moscow will be anxious to see the situation in the Middle East escalated. It would prefer instead to encourage peace talks between the Arabs and Israelis as well as between North and South Vietnam. It appears that an internationally supervised armistice in Vietnam will be the only kind of agreement that will really end the fighting in Southeast Asia.

Coincidentally, the Middle East situation will drag slowly toward a negotiated agreement, though it may take a long time to get Israel and the Arab states to come to terms unless the Soviet Union and the United States can find a reasonable formula for settlement of the dispute.

Jim Bishop: Reporter

Twenty-five years ago today, the heavy cruiser Indianapolis was south of Midway easing through the heavy swells of the Pacific Ocean at 20 knots without strain. Her mission was secret; even her captain did not understand it. He had been ordered to take aboard a group of scientists with some heavy gear covered with canvas and deliver them to the Mariana Islands command.

Indianapolis carried two atomic bombs. One would fuse downtown Hiroshima into glassy ribbons and kill more than 78,000 people at once. The other bomb, with the new Kistiakowksy implosion device would be dropped on Nagasaki and slaughter 65,000 people. In both cities, others would die later of flash burns and radiation sickness, but the objects lashed to the main deck appeared to be innocuous.

There were secret orders how to dispose of these objects in case the Indianapolis should be torpedoed, or should be engaged with an enemy surface force, but not a word of what to do with the scientists except to keep them from falling into enemy hands.

Imperial Japan did not know it — and wouldn't until long after the war was over — but the U.S. only had three such bombs. The first was used as a test firing on a tower in the vast emptiness near Alamogordo, New Mexico. The second (after suitable warning leaflets had been dropped) would go to Hiroshima; the third to Nagasaki.

The gentlemen in the Pentagon figured that if those canvas-draped obituary notices impressed the Japanese high command that the United States now had a far superior weapon, Emperor Hirohito might assume that there was an unending supply of them and his nation could not withstand decimation.

In that case, Operation Olympic, the actual invasion of the main Japanese islands by American amphibious forces, could be cancelled and possibly a million American lives could be saved. It was a good gamble because it worked.

Indianapolis, 10,000 tons of huge gray freeboard and 8-inch rifles, slid into port, made her delivery of canvas objects and scientists, and asked for further orders.

The rear admiral in command of the port studied his secret charts. The battle of the Philippines was over, and Admiral J. B. Olendorf's old battleships, raised from Pearl Harbor graves, had crossed the Japanese T and wrecked a good part of the Imperial Japanese Fleet.

The base admiral ordered Captain Charles McVay III of the Indianapolis to proceed to Tinian and Leyte Gulf, and then to Olendorf's task force for further orders. Late in the day, the heavy cruiser slipped her moorings and, with all engines ahead slow, crept over the coral heads to blue water. Like most ladies, Indianapolis was slightly topheavy.

Admiral Raymond Spruance had predicted that, if Indianapolis ever sustained a single torpedo hit, she would capsize within five minutes. An encoded message went from the Marianas command to Rear Admiral Lynde D. McCormick to expect Indianapolis at 1100 hours July 31.

The communications officer aboard the old battleship Idaho found the words to be so garbled as to be indecipherable. He refused to break radio silence and ask for a repeat. Therefore, no one expected Indianapolis.

The big cruiser moved sedately through flat oily seas on a north-westerly bearing at 15.6 knots. She had radar, but no sound detection gear. On the bridge, her officers kept her on a dead straight bearing, with no zig-zagging. What was left of the Japanese fleet was at bases on Honshu and Hokkaido, a thousand miles straight north.

On the second night out, moonrise occurred at 10 p.m. the sea was a quartering chop. Directly ahead was a small Japanese submarine, I-58, under Lieutenant Commander Ike Hashimoto. His ship had a history of hard luck. Once, the crew thought they had sunk a tanker.

At 11 p.m. I-58 surfaced. Looking east, through the moon path, Lt. Comdr. Hasimoto could not believe his eyes. Something which appeared to be a battleship was approaching from the east, was not zig-zagging, would pass south of his position at a distance of 4500 feet. He couldn't miss.

He waited, then fired six torpedoes. Three hit on the starboard side. The side and bottom of the big cruiser were ripped out, but she continued ahead, scooping water and hastening her suicide. An S.O.S. went out, but no one knew whether the ship had electrical power.

In 15 minutes, Indianapolis headed for the bottom, 7,200 feet down. Of 1,196 men aboard, 825 got into the water alive. These were the unlucky ones. No one missed Indianapolis. The survivors blistered in rafts. They died by twos and threes. Four days later, an army plane sighted an oil slick and rafts. She signalled for help. In all, 880 men died in the final futile days of the war.

They didn't know that they had been carrying the means to spare the lives of all except their own...

Jack Anderson Says
West Virginia Governor Accused Of Pocketing Campaign Funds

WASHINGTON — Arch Moore, Jr., the huskily handsome Republican governor of West Virginia, promised during his campaign two years ago that he would lift the state out of the quagmire of political scandal.

"We must have integrity in state government," he declared in a deep, righteous voice at his inaugural. "West Virginians deserve honorable government, and I will demand it!"

Yet even as Moore spoke these pious words, he allegedly had salted away more than $80,000 in campaign contributions for his personal use — a matter that the Internal Revenue Service has now turned over to the Justice Department for possible prosecution.

A grand jury is also reopening an investigation into the purchasing practices of Governor Moore's administration. Charges of political payoffs, reaching all the way up to Moore himself, are under scrutiny. His chief purchasing agent, John Bell, already had been indicted for alleged bribery.

Meanwhile, this column has uncovered evidence that Moore illegally accepted several campaign donations from corporations — an offense which carries a $5,000 fine under West Virginia law.

Some of these illegal contributions are actually listed in the campaign finance reports that Moore filed with the Secretary of State. This would indicate Moore is either indiscreet or indifferent about the law.

Moore's Illegal $1,000

But he failed to report, and thereby violated another law, at least one corporate contribution. This was a generous $1,000 signed over to him on a company check less than a month before the election.

The check was signed by Harold Frankel, president of the United Realty Corporation, a holding company which owns a Holiday Inn in Huntington, W. Va. Dated October 10, 1968, the check was drawn on United Realty's account at the Twentieth Street Bank in Huntington. It was made out to Moore himself and was endorsed by the Moore for Governor Committee.

Reached by telephone at his office in Huntington, Frankel, a former county sheriff, said he couldn't remember whether he gave Moore any money. In any case, he claimed such contributions aren't illegal as long as the company doesn't try to use them as a tax deduction.

This is nonsense. West Virginia law explicity provides that "no office of any corporation, or agent on behalf of such corporation shall pay, give or lend, or authorize to be paid, given or lent any money to any candidate, financial agent or political committee for the payment of any primary or election expenses whatever."

We also tried to reach Moore for his comment, but he refused to return our calls. This was the same treatment we recieved when we placed a call to the Goveror a few weeks ago to ask him about the $80,000 in political donations that he allegedly pocketed.

Footnote: The personable Arch Moore is a former Congressman who is remembered in Washington for his high living. He lived in an expensive house in the fashionable Potomac countryside where he kept riding horses. He also liked to pick up the check at expensive Washington restaurants. On Capitol Hill, he was known as the champion of Pittsburgh Plate Glass Company's legislative interests. Previously the company had gone into the West Virginia mountains for legal advice and had selected none other than Arch Moore's law firm.

Ties to Lobbyist

Senator Frank Moss, D-Utah, who is conducting a Senate investigation of breakfast foods, has on his congressional payroll an attorney who until two weeks ago was affiliated with Kellogg Company's Washington lobbyist.

A third partner in their firm is treasurer of a testimonial committee, which is raising funds for Moss's political campaign.

As evidence that Moss hasn't been influenced by these ties, however, his investigation has been hard on Kellogg. He has charged that most dry cereals, including several Kellogg products, not only don't measure up to inflated advertising claims but are actually deficient in the nutrients they claim to provide growing children.

Kellogg's man in Washington, Deryl Fleming, was affiliated until two weeks ago with two partners. They were Gary Fink, who is also a part-time attorney on Moss's staff, and Lee Corcoran, who is treasurer of the Senator Moss Testimonial Committee.

Moss told this column that he hired Fink, a postal expert, to advise him on postal matters. The Senator is a member of the Senate Post Office Committee.

He knew Fink practiced law but had no idea of his link with Kellogg, said the Senator. He added that neither Fink, Corcoran nor Fleming had ever spoken to him about Kellogg.

Fleming admitted to this column that Corcoran had spoken to him about raising campaign funds for Moss. But Fleming said he had made absolutely no contributions to the Senator's campaign.

If a contribution had been offered, it is recalled that Moss is the same Senator who turned down a $5,000 oil donation rather than compromise his independence on oil questions.

Boyle's Amnesia

He called it an "outright calumny" for anyone to say, as this column flatly stated, that he had supported Prof. J. Richard Lucas to head the Bureau of Mines. The professor withdrew as President Nixon's nominee after we exposed his background in a series of columns.

If tough Tony will check his own statements, he will find that he is on record as stating after Lucas's nomination: "There is no question that Professor Lucas is qualified . . . We urge the Senate to expedite the confirmation of Professor Lucas."

Footnote: On an earlier occasion, some 10 years ago, Lucas accepted a $1,000 fee from the UMW for testifying in the union's behalf.

Henry J. Taylor Says
Peace Talks Totally Dead

In Paris I found our so-called peace talks totally dead and defunct and almost certain to remain that way as far ahead as our U.S. negotiators can see. Nor do they think the arrival of Ambassador David K. E. Bruce holds any promise whatever.

The deserted second-floor, rear, section of the American Embassy set aside for our negotiations look as cheery as a well-swept execution yard and is populated at the moment only by a sergeant in the U.S. Marines.

Moreover, contrary to some published reports, there are no secret negotiations with the enemy that are of real consequence going on anywhere. Absolutely nothing substantive is being discussed through intermediaries in Warsaw or any place else.

When you see two jig-saw puzzle pieces that fit, you put them together. If they do not fit you look for other pieces. That's not mere guesswork. It's piece-building. But there are no pieces in the Paris talks and none is awaiting Ambassador Bruce.

The late Hanoi chief, Ho Chi Minh, refused nearly a thousand "peace feelers" — 39 listed as major inside our own State Department — before he consented to even the preliminary talks that began in Paris on May 13, 1968 — more than two years ago. And to this day arrogant Ha Van Lau, the acting chief of the Hanoi delegation, states quite openly that the fundamental weakness in our position at the talks is that the United States "cannot outlast us in Vietnam" and, nevertheless, "obviously does not intend to outfight us."

More than a third of all the Americans killed in Vietnam have been killed since the Paris peace talks began. And, while our Vietnam dead lay siege to our hearts, Ha Van Lau still looks at our negotiators with the cold, mean eyes of a lynx, and in his shrill voice they continue to hear the merciless scream of the fanatic.

With equal openness he states that Hanoi is totally content without any military victory. The Reds are merely content to kill about 300 Americans a month whenever convenient and let American public opinion do the rest.

Ha Van Lau glories in the fact that public opinion in the United States, spearheaded by anti-war demonstrations and Senate speeches, is our problem. Public opinion and family sorrow apply in our country; these mean nothing in Hanoi. The Red plan is only and entirely what the French call "le jen de pouvoir" — the relentless, wearing effect that erodes things, including the spirit of resistance.

Since the Cambodian incursion was launched on April 30 the White House has taken the view that this action would better the prospects of the Paris peace talks, even though President Nixon did not rule out the possibility of renewed enemy attacks this summer.

In his July 1 nationwide TV report at the end of the Cambodian operation on June 30, the President said that this incursion's success changed the military balance in Indochina and pointed out that, historically, that was the time when negotiations usually become more fruitful.

Yet Secretary of State William P. Rogers himself, on his trip abroad, stated to new British Prime Minister Edward Heath that the Cambodian operation left peace no closer than it was a year ago.

Mr. Rogers made it plain to Mr. Heath, and likewise to West German Chancellor Willy Brandt, that he sees Red China committed to constant warfare and stated that Peking is, of course, admittedly opposed to the Paris negotiations.

Mr. Rogers feels that Hanoi's gravest political problem is today not the United States. Instead, it is the split between Russia and Mao Tse-tung. He finds this so advanced that both Red powers have turned their Vietnam policy into merely a tool in their over-all clash.

But, behind the scenes, Mr. Rogers also added a significant conviction. He stated that in his opinion Red China "has gained influence in Hanoi as a result of the Cambodian operation." He saw this as meaning that "Hanoi will not be inclined to negotiate regardless of the Cambodia results."

At every European stop Secretary Rogers quietly warned our allies to have "no false hopes about the Paris talks," even though in public he necessarily played the situation as close as this paper is to your nose.

We have scuttled the goals of citizenship in the name of scholarship. We have made grades an end in themselves. We have measured our children's worth by their ability to make grades and show us off to good advantage.

Green Thumb Eyes Destructive Bugs

By GEORGE ABRAHAM

The most destructive insect on corn today is the corn earworm. The adult moth lays eggs on the fresh corn silk (female elements) and the newly hatched larvae ("grubs") feed on the silk, sometimes cutting them in two. This prevents pollination and as a result some kernels fail to develop. When the silks dry, the pest invades the kernels at the ear tip and can proceed about halfway down the ear, devouring the young kernels. Once the larvae have completed their feeding on the corn, they fall or crawl to the ground where they bury themselves two to four inches below. There they develop a protective cell and change to pupae (dormant stage) in one to three days. These change to adults and emerge in about 11 to 21 days. The last generation of the pupae spend the winter in the soil and reappear as adult moths again in spring. CONTROL: Dust the silks as soon as they first appear, and continue until the silks are dry and no longer attractive to moths for laying eggs. Use Sevin insecticide. Dust or spray it toward the ear zone to thoroughly cover ears and silks.

TIME FOR IRIS BORERS: Now's a good time to be on the lookout for iris borers. If leaves appear wilted, discolored and partly dead, you can be pretty sure the iris borer is working. This pest is a flesh colored grub which bores into the leaves and rhizomes. In addition to the direct injury caused by the borers, a bacterial disease is introduced into the damaged crowns, causing an ill-smelling soft rot. CONTROL: dig up the plants and if you see any young grubs crush them with thumb and forefinger, or stab them with a knife. Look for wateresoaked areas in the leaves, and if present you'll find grubs, it's a safe bet. After plants are dug, separate the roots and dust with Sevin, methoyxchlor or malathion and replant. It's also a good idea to apply the dust over the entire iris bed and water it in. Keep your iris bed neat and trim by removing old seed or flower heads, and cut the foliage back a bit when it starts to yellow up.

GREEN THUMB CLINIC: "We want to start a compost pile. Can we use table scraps peelings, watermelons, rinds, etc?"

Answer: Yes, It's a good idea. If you're worried about rodents, build yourself a pit, using cement blocks. Add scraps, grass clippings, leaves, potato peelings, etc. and these materials will break down into valuable humus.

If your soil is heavy or light (Clayey or sandy) compost is ideal for improving such soils. FREE: Send me a self-addressed, stamped envelope for your free copy of our bulletin, HOW TO MAKE A COMPOST PILE.

Those Falling Summer Leaves: Insects Could Be the Reason

Tree leaves bear watching this summer, a tree expert said today. In hot weather, the leaves on many trees will wilt and fall or lose color.

Knowing the cause of leaf changes is important, said Robert A. Bartlett, president of The F.A. Bartlett Tree Expert Company. If the cause is disease or insects, prompt action should be taken.

"Hot, dry weather often results in trees shedding excess leaves," he explained.

"The tree is compensating for a lack of soil moisture. It is a normal act of nature, especially if preceded by a wet spring."

He said excess elm leaves usually turn yellow before they shed. The loss of color does not necessarily mean the tree has Dutch elm disease. On horse-chestnut and sugar maples, leaf scorch is indicated by irregular brown blotches on the leaves. The blotches, caused by hot sun and drying winds, are not serious.

"But wilts require attention. Verticillium wilt — an internal fungus disease — affects maple, linden, elm and other trees. Removing the wilted branch and a chemotherapy injection is recommeded. Dutch elm disease also manifests itself by wilt. Here again surgery is required."

Fungus diseases sometimes mar leaves on ash, dogwood, elm, hickory, linden, maple, oak and sycamore. Timely spraying with fungicides is necessary, he said.

Quick counter attack is required to rid trees of chewing and and sucking insects which cause leaves to become vapid and drop." Mr. Bartlett said. "It is important that spraying is done as soon as these insects are discovered."

Why are so many Kingston pool buyers saying "Gunite"?
Our advertising has had nothing to do with it. This is the first ad we've run here. But our success story has somehow travelled down from the Capital where we introduced residential Gunite swimming pools for the first time in the $4,000 range.
Gunite is pneumatically applied concrete — a process that produces the only kind of pool that's structurally guaranteed for as long as you own it. We've built thousands of larger Gunite pools all over the east. For country clubs, schools, parks and even a few private estates. In fact, we've just contracted to build the new Kingston YMCA pool.
We're in the area now, with our skilled crews. And we'd like to keep them busy on your kind of pool.
There's a lot more to the Paddock Gunite story, and we'd like you to know all about it. If you're interested in a permanent pool — that can be built to any shape you can imagine — call collect or write — right now. 518-459-3121.

Yes, Ridge Homes has mortgage money and a home you can afford!
How come Ridge has mortgage money when nobody else does? Because, as the East's largest home manufacturer, we have our own financial resources to help people build new homes. Yes, even now, during this tight money squeeze. Especially now! Because with the cost of land and labor going up 1% every month, people just can't afford to postpone building any longer.
"But", you're probably thinking, "what good is a mortgage if I can't afford the house I want?" Being the largest helps there, too. We've bought materials in such big quantities that we're able to join the fight against inflation by not raising our material prices this year. That's right: Our Basic Prices for 1970 aren't a penny higher than they were in 1969!
Then there's the thousands of dollars more you can save by our unique homebuilding plan . . . a program that lets you help yourself to more home than you ever dreamed you could afford.
You'll find the whole story in our new magazine. It's 84 colorful pages of pure inspiration . . . the first magazine of its kind! It includes all 39 Ridge models . . . decorator ideas . . . Ridge Homes' "Wonderful World of Choice" for floor plans, bathrooms, kitchens . . . It's the complete exciting story. There's even a feature article written by a man who's building his own Ridge home right now on just a $100 deposit!
To get a copy of this magazine free, come in and see your Ridge dealer. Talk things over with him. Before you know it, you can be living in the home you've always wanted.

Now visit your Ridge Dealer and pick up your free copy of the magazine that shows you how to get started.

JUNIOR LEAGUE PROVISIONALS — Members of the Provisional class of the Junior League of Kingston recently visited the Department of Social Services of Ulster County. Commissioner Joseph Fitzsimmons and department supervisors explained the functions of this agency anl the services available through the department to the citizens of this county. The education program was another in a series of courses being given the Provisional class this year in order to train its members for effective participation in the community through a program of education and volunteer service. Pictured here are (L-R) Mrs. Harri Janssen, co-chairman of the class; Mrs. David Brush; Commissioner Fitzsimmons, Mrs. Allen Atherton, and Mrs. Henry Sykes. (Freeman photo by Kruh).

Hints From Heloise

Dear Heloise:

I am 85 years old with no relatives. When I was desperately ill in the hospital recently, one of my friends devised something (after I had mentioned that my minister had not been to see me) that I think you might pass on . . .

She made me a little "memory book" and everyone who came to visit me was asked to sign it.

Then each evening she would read to me the visits of the day. I felt less lonely when nighttime came.

I am home now, and, after rereading my precious book, I felt that others could benefit from this idea. We sometimes remember little of what goes on during an illness. This keepsake renewed my confidence and made me realize I was not forgotten.

Mrs. M. H. T.

Hospitals, as bustling with activity as they are, can be mighty lonesome for someone in a private room with no relatives to take an interest.

We're ever so happy you are well again, and are delighted to pass on your fine idea.

Heloise

Dear Heloise:

You know the heavy aluminum sheets that you buy to catch spills in the oven?

I was cleaning out my oven today and hit on the idea of turning the browned side under and using the other side. As it has a little turned up edge, I just turned it down all the way around.

It looks good and I can get twice the use out of it, because before I would always discard them when they became burned from spills.

Mrs. D.

You turned the trick with that one for sure!

Heloise

Dear Heloise:

Have you ever been surprised with that unexpected guest just at dinner time and caught without a dessert?

Here's a quickie that's easy to prepare, delicious and colorful . . .

Open as many of those little cans of frozen, concentrated orange juice as needed, scoop out the juice and place it on dessert dishes. Then cover with whipped cream, sprinkle with chopped nuts and top with a cherry.

Mrs. D. Covington

Dear Heloise:

This is something I learned the hard way.

I bought a tablecloth with a vibrant print and didn't spread it out enough in the store. The cloth was not small (60x84), and my dining room has electric light, not florescent like the store.

The result was that the cloth looked much too bright, and I was most disappointed in my selection.

Keep in mind, too, that a print cloth will also look different when set with dishes than just spread out on the table.

CARRIAGES OF YESTERYEAR — Member of the committee in charge of the Shaker Museum's 15th Annual Festival in Old Chatham, pose with a Studebaker Break, one of the vintage vehicles which will be on display at the "Carriages of Yesteryear" exhibit on Aug. 1. In the carriage (L-R) are Mrs. Russell S. Petterson, Mrs. H. Howell Bartlett, Mrs. Henry W. Stock and Mrs. John S. Williams Sr. Standing (L-R) Mrs. Frederic L. Simmons, general chairman of the festival committee. The exhibit will include virtually every type of carriage popular in its day from the stately "break" or "brake" with its multi-passenger capacity to the jaunty "dog cart." They are all the possessions of Columbia County residents and many of them were inherited from forebears who used them to attend social functions, to meet trains, for touring, for transportation to the races, sporting events, hunting and the like. And her feature of general interest at the Shaker Museum Festival will be the art exhibit by Eric Cloane, famous American Artist, author, traveler and collector of American artifacts. The festival will be held Saturday, Aug. 1 from 10 a. m. to 6 p. m. (Lees Studio).

Tiny Tips

Serve an eye-catcher for lunch or at party-time. Spread four slices of buttered raisin bread with contents of 1 4¾-ounce can of chicken spread. Cover with a layer of peeled apple slices dipped in lemon juice. Serve as open face sandwiches or top with additional raisin bread slices.

A cool and quick salad for lazy summer days is one of baked ham cut in julienne strips, crumbled mozzarella cheese, fresh spinach and celery, tossed with Italian salad dressing just before serving.

Heloise Booklet

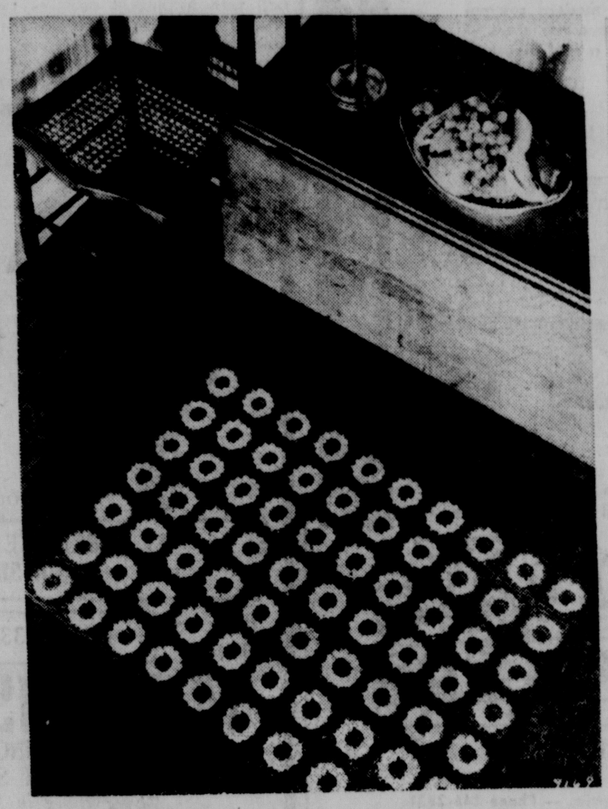

Demand for the new Heloise booklet, "Heloise's Hints on Household Fabrics," has greatly exceeded expectations.

The editors of King Features Syndicate have been swamped by requests—more than 200,000 by July 6. There are 20 people working full time on fulfillment, but they are having difficulty in keeping up with the flow of requests.

Although there is a delay, perhaps as much as 10 days, all requests will be filled.

THE COMFORTABLE OLD HASSOCK isn't what it used to be; it's better. Even Dad approves of this bold new cover. The 17-inch diameter top is completely embroidered with a contempoary floral motif. It is done with six strand floss in warm shades of yellow, orange, golden brown and aqua. The same pattern can be adapted to a round tablecloth or cushion. Free instructions are available by sending a self-addressed, stamped envelope to the Woman's Page Editor of The Daily Freeman along with your request for Leaflet PE 5247.

IT'S SUMMERTIME, anytime, when a rug of daisies is spread at your feet. White flowers on a red field brighten any nook or cranny of your home. The rug measures 24-36 inches. It is made up of 3½ inch square motifs. Each is crocheted separately of rug yarn. You can add more squares to make a larger rug. Free instructions are available by sending a self-addressed, stamped envelope to the Woman's Page Editor of this publication along with your request for Leaflet PC 4955.

EXPLORE the mysteries of the deep with a tapestry needle and yarn. This embroidered picture reveals life at the bottom of the sea. Eight different stitches are used to re-create exotic flora and a sea horse. The design is worked with worsted yarn on burlap. The finished picture measures 10½ x 22½ inches, unframed. Free instructions are available by sending a self-addressed, stamped envelope to the Woman's Page Editor of The Daily Freeman along with your request for Leaflet PE 4218.

WAA Show Opens Saturday

Portraits and Nudes will comprise the fifth show of the Woodstock Artists Association 1970 season starting Saturday, July 25 through August 4 at the Woodstock Art Gallery.

Artists are to submit one work which will be juried by the following trio of painters: Sally Avery, with recognition in her own right and widow of the famed Milton Avery; John W. Taylor whose enviable reputation as a painter and teacher spans several decades, and Philip Held, Chairman of the Art Department of The Fieldston School whose work is in numerous collections.

The entire series of summer shows at the Woodstock Art Gallery are celebrated with opening parties on the first day, from 4 to 6 p.m. The parties are free to members.

The next exhibit scheduled for the Gallery is August 22 — September 1. An invitational show, 10 artists will choose three painters to show selections of their work.

Certain memberships in the Woodstock Artists Association enjoy a print bonus. This year the print is by Barbara Neustadt, director of The Studio Workshop in Woodstock. Persons wishing to become members are invited to make inquiry from Mrs. Norma Millman who is in charge of the Gallery.

The Kennedy Women
Beginning August 3rd, 1970
a personal appraisal
by Pearl S. Buck
America's First Lady of Literature
Exclusively in The Daily Freeman

Pearl S. Buck focuses her unique talents on the distaff side of an American dynasty in a 12-part serialization of her new book published by the Cowles Book Company.

With the insight born of her own hardships, Pearl Buck presents a compassionate yet candid portrait of the women who were born Kennedys or married Kennedy men. She writes of Rose, beautiful, well-bred, and politically wise; of her first daughter, the lovely but retarded Rosemary; of Kathleen and Eunice, Jean and Joan; of the ebullient Ethel, the rebellious Patricia, the self-willed Jacqueline; and, lastly, of young Caroline.

Watch for the first chapter of this thoughtful, sobering, and, at times, surprising appraisal of The Kennedy Women

Beginning Monday, August 3rd
THE DAILY FREEMAN

MR. AND MRS. JAMES D. DEVINE of 164 Washington Avenue, celebrated their 35th wedding anniversary at a surprise party held at the Alpine Restaurant on Sunday, July 19. Married at St. Joseph's Church in Kingston on July 6, 1935, they are the parents of J. Daniel Devine. Mr. Devine is employed in the appraising and real estate business. Approximately 35 relatives and friends attended the gala. (Glenn R. Fitzgerald photo).

Columbiette Official Is Honored

On Saturday evening, July 18 at Governor Clinton Hotel, Mrs. Edward Ahl, newly elected president of the New York State Columbiettes, was guest of honor at a dinner given by the Columbiettes of Kingston Council No. 275 Knights of Columbus.

Mrs. Ahl, charter member and first president of the Kingston Columbiettes, has served her Auxiliary and the Hudson Valley Chapter ably in many offices prior to her election as state president of the Columbiettes.,

Seated on the dais in addition to the guest of honor were: the Most Rev. James E. McManus, CSsR,DD, Episcopal Vicar of Ulster and Sullivan Counties; City Judge, Hubert Richter; Ralph Clark, faithful navigator K of C; Joseph Bruno, co-ordinator of Columbiettes; Mrs. Edward Curry, president, Hudson Valley Chapter of Columbiettes; Mrs. Philip Sweeney, district deputy of Columbiettes; George Becker, district deputy of K of C; Mrs. Joseph Bruno, president of the Kingston Columbiettes; Mrs. James Kelly, chairman of the dinner.

Also in attendance were Edward Ahl Sr., Mr. and Mrs. Edward Ahl Jr. Guests were present from Monroe, Saugerties, Phoencia and congratulatory messages were read from Mayor Francis Koenig; Alderman-at-large Bobby Gallo; state deputy of K of C, Wally Stevenson; supreme president of Columbiettes, Evelyn Volpe; past president N. Y. State Columbiettes, Marie Courtney; supreme director of K of C, James Foley; and the Middletown Auxiliary.

Father James Kelly spoke for the Rt. Rev. John J. O'Reilly, chaplain of Kingston Columbiettes, who was unable to attend.

Entertainment was provided by Rita Mary Senor with her guitar and after rendering several solos she led the assembly in group singing. Mrs. Frank Ruddy of Saugerties Columbiettes sang "Some of these Days" and there was a chorus sung by the Columbiettes of a song written by Mrs. Philip Sweeney for Mrs. Edward Ahl.

TESTIMONIAL DINNER — Mrs. Edward Ahl, third from the left, State president of the Columbiettes, was honored at a testimonial dinner Saturday, July 18 at Governor Clinton Hotel. Principals attending the event included (L-R) Joseph Bruno, co-ordinator, Columbiettes of Knights of Columbus, Kingston Council No. 275; the Most Rev. James E. McManus CSsR, DD, Episcopal vicar of Sullivan and Ulster Counties; Mrs. Ahl; Mrs. Joseph Bruno, president of Kingston Columbiettes; and Mrs. James Kelley, chairman of the testimonial. Dorian Woodwin Quintet Coming to Maverick Hall

The Dorian Woodwind Quintet will return to Maverick Hall Sunday, July 26 at 3 p.m. The program will be a "melange" of Baroque, classical and contemporary pieces, many of which are rarely heard because of the combinations of the instruments required. Two Baroque works by Richa and Pergolesi will be balanced by modern and semi-modern pieces by Milhaud, Irving Fine and Ibert.

Organized in 1961 under Fromm Foundation Grant at Tanglewood, The Dorian Quintet has become an outstanding participant in the world of chamber music. It has concertized throughout America, Africa, and recently flew to Europe for an eight week tour under the auspieces of the U.S. State Department. The Quintet has concertized in London, Berlin, Zurich and Rome, as well as at New Delhi, Iran, Cyprus and Lebanan. In the 1970-71 season, their cross-country tour will include two concerts at Hunter College in New York.

The Dorian Quintet fills a need for a permanent organization of virtuoso wind players to perform masterworks of the Woodwind literature. Members of the Quintet are first class players of rare technical capability. The group holds the position now of University-wide Artists in Residence at the entire State University of New York. In addition, the Quintet has joined the faculty of Brooklyn College as its resident artists.

Three of the members have been with the group since its inception: Jane Taylor, bassoon, a product of Queen's College Music Department, has studied bassoon with Bernard Garfield, and has performed with the Symphony of the Air, the American Symphony, the Little Orchestra Society, and at Marlboro Festival. She is presently a member of the faculty of Mannes College of Music.

Charles Kuskin, oboe, studied with Harold Gomberg at the Juilliard School. He has been a member of many symphony orchestras and of New York Pro Musica, and has participated in the Marlboro Festival. He also has recorded for Columbia, RCA and Decca.

William Lewis, clarinet, studied in his native California with Mitchell Lurie and has BS and MS degrees from Julliard. He was soloist with Stokowsky's Symphony and other orchestras.

Karl Karber, flute, has a BA degree in Music from Harvard and had a Fulbirght Grant to Italy for two years where he studied with Jean-Pierre Rampal, the noted flutist. He remained three additional years in Europe

Barry Benjamin, French horn, is a graduate of Eastman School of Music, and has been soloist with the Rochester Symphony, Eastman Wind Ensemble, and is a member of the famed New York Brass Quintet. He has lectured on the French horn at both Cornell and Yale Universities.

Tongore Flower Show

Flower Show Committee members Dr. Murray Kwit, Mrs. Joseph Friedburg, and Committee Chairman Mrs. Murray Kwit have completed plans for the Tongore Garden Club; annual show.

The Flower Show will illustrate how flowers are related to arts and crafts in the home. The show, which will be informal and unjudged, will be held on Saturday Aug. 1 from 1 p.m. to 5 p.m., at the Benett School in Boiceville.

The schedule is as follows: I. Models for an Artist to Paint: A. Softness of watercolors, B. Richness of Oils, C. Three Dimensions in Sclupture, II. The Craftsman — Design: A. Designs for fabrics, B. Patterns for weaving or printing, C. Ceramic or China Painting, D. Carvings — in silver Glass, etc., III. The Homemaker Beautifies with Flowers: A. Brightens a dark spot, B. Dresses up an Endtable, C. Decorates a dinner table. IV. Horticulture: A. Cut Specimens, B. Potted Plants.

Any non member who wishes to exhibit in the show is welcome and may make arrangemtns by contacting Mrs. Joseph Friedburg.

Calabria Leads Men's State Amateur Golf

MANTLE—MANAGER—Former New York Yankee slugger, Mickey Mantle shows youngsters how to bunt here at Flamingo Park, Miami Beach, Fla. More than 700 youngsters participated in the three day Mickey Mantle instruction program. (UPI TELEPHOTO).

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — John Calabria of Rochester carried a one-stroke lead into the third round of the state Men's Amateur Golf Tournament today.

Calabria shot a one under par 71 over the suburban Locust Hill Country Club course Thursday to go with his opening day 71 for a 36-hole total of 142.

Only one shot off the pace with 143 was Don Allen of Rochester, who fired a two under par 70 Thursday after a first round score of 73.

Bunched behind Calabria and Allen were three golfers with 144s. They are Chip Lillich of Rochester, J. Haight Jr. of Syracuse and John Govern of Binghamton.

And right behind them with a 145 was Terry Diehl of Rochester, the defending champion. He had an even par 72 Thursday after shooting a 73 for the first day.

Only 38 golfers out of a field of 129 remained in contention for the championship after Thursday's cutoff round. The cutoff was 152.

Palmer, Nicklaus Head Four-Ball Play

By United Press International

LIGONIER, Pa. (UPI) —It was Jack Nicklaus' anniversary and, for a present, he got Arnold Palmer.

Palmer and Nicklaus, the odd couple—partners instead of rivals—teamed for a 10-under-par 61 Thursday to carry a three-stroke lead into today's second round of the $200,000 National Four-Ball golf championship.

Nicklaus, celebrating his 10th wedding anniversary, scored four birdies and Palmer, playing a major tournament in his home district for the first time since the 1965 PGA here, had six. Their better ball card was 32-29—62 over the 7,045-yard, par-71, Laurel Valley Golf Club.

It was a day that started wet and gloomy, but even the sky brightened for the game's two biggest stars.

They began play at 1:10 p.m. and precisely at that moment, the rain stopped and the sun broke through the clouds.

Tied for second place with 32-32—64 scores were the teams of Jim Colbert and Dean Refram, and Dave Eichelberger and J. C. Goosie.

There were four teams at 65, five at 66 and 13 at 67.

Those at 65 were Bob Charles-Bruce Devlin, Pete Brown-George Johnson, Joel Goldstrand-Harry Toscano and Chris Blocker-Howie Johnson.

The 66 group included Bob Smith-Bob Stanton, Miller Barber-Don January, Mason Rudolph-Dan Sikes, Mac Clendon-Randy Wolff and Jim Grant-Hugh Royer.

Among those at 67 were two pairs of brothers, Dave and Mike Hill and Dick and John Lotz, plus Lee Trevino-Jesse Whittenton, Sam Snead-Gardner Dickinson and George Archer-Bobby Nichols, the 1968 winners.

McDowell Suddenly Has Super Star Look

By United Press International

The label "super star," which Sam McDowell picked up prematurely as an 18-year-old in 1960 is beginning to look good on the Cleveland Indians' fireballer.

McDowell raised his 1970 record to 15-4 when he pitched the Indians to a 5-2 victory over the Chicago White Sox Thursday night. He struck out nine, raising his season total to 206, and walked one.

"I am going after 25 victories," he said after the game. "for six innings tonight I was just a thrower, but in the eighth and ninth innings I put the ball where I wanted to."

Vada Pinson's two-run homer in the fifth, following a single by Jack Heidemann, gave the Indians a 3-2 lead and they added another run in the sixth on singles by Ray Fosse, Duke Sims and Ted Uhlaender. Joe Horlen, who hasn't won a game since June 19, was tagged for 10 hits and four runs in six innings and suffered his 14th loss against six wins.

The Baltimore Orioles beat the Kansas City Royals, 5-4, for the 20th straight time over two seasons, the Minnesota Twins defeated the Detroit Tigers, 2-1, and the California Angels topped the Boston Red Sox, 4-1, in the only other American League games.

Frank Robinson drove in three runs with a two-run homer in the third and a tie-breaking sacrifice fly in the seventh to help Jim Palmer win his 14th victory against six losses. Palmer went 7 1-3 innings, yielding all four Kansas City runs, before Pete Richert and Eddie Watt came on in relief to preserve the triumph. Dick Drago suffered his eighth defeat against six victories.

Rookie Bert Blyleven pitched a four-hitter, struck out eight and walked three in raising his record to 4-3 for the Twins Batterymate George Mitterwald hit his eighth homer of the year to snap a 1-1 tie in the seventh inning and deal 10-game winner Joe Niekro his eighth setback.

Ninth-inning doubles by Jarvis Tatum and Billy Cowan snapped a 1-1 tie and the Angels added two more runs in the frame on a walk to Alex Johnson, a single by Jim Pencer and a double by Ken McMullen. Tatum, who held the Red Sox hitless in the last two innings, won his fifth game while Ken Brets suffered his fifth loss.

Milt Pappas Wins Again

By United Press International

After four mediocre seasons in the National League, it looks as if Milt Pappas has finally solved the circuit's hitters.

Pappas allowed only four hits in pitching the Chicago Cubs to a 1-0 victory over Cincinnati Thursday, handing the Reds their first shutout of the season. It was the third complete game in five starts for Pappas since joining the Cubs last month from Atlanta.

The deal has been mutually satisfying to both Pappas and the Cubs. "It's a pleasure to win," Pappas said. "I haven't been in a regular rotation since May or June last year, and when you get to be 31 after 13 years, when you don't know how many more you've got to go, it's a pleasure to win anything."

Don Kessinger scored the only run of the game on Woody Woodward's eighth inning throwing error Kessinger, the first batter to face relief pitcher Clay Carroll, drew a walk, went to second when Glenn Beckert also walked and scored on Woodward's throwing error trying to double Billy Williams on a ground ball.

In the only other National League action, Pittsburgh edged Atlanta, 6-5, and Houston nipped St. Louis, 3-2.

In the American League, California tripped Boston, 4-1, Baltimore defeated Kansas City, 5-4, Minnesota downed Detroit, 2-1, and Cleveland whipped Chicago, 5-2, in a limited schedule.

A sacrifice fly by Dave Cash snapped a 5-5 tie in the eighth inning and gave the Pirates the win. Cash's fly to deep center capped a three-run rally and gave Dick Colpaert his first major league win.

Johnny Edwards hit a tie-breaking homer in the fifth inning to back the six-hit pitching of Jack Billingham and help the Astros past St. Louis. Edwards' homer down the left field line pinned the loss on Bob Gibson, whose record is now 12-5. It was Gibson's 12th complete game in 21 starts.

Yesterday's Stars

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

PITCHING—Milt Pappas, Cubs, tossed a four-hit shutout over Cincinnati, the first time the Reds had been blanked this season, as Chicago edged them 1-0.

BATTING—Frank Robinson, Orioles, crashed a two-run homer and drove in another run with a sacrifice fly in Baltimore's 5-4 victory over Kansas City.

DETROIT (UPI) — Lerrin LaGrow, 22, a 6-foot-5, 220-pound right-handed pitcher, was purchased Thursday by the Detroit Tigers from their Montgomery farm club in the Southern League to replace Bob Reed on the roster. Reed has two weeks of military duty starting Friday.

Ferraro Stars, Red Wings Win

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Rochester has taken a short cut back into the upper bracket of the International League from fifth spot to supplant Columbus in third position with a victory over the Jets.

The Red Wings' 4-3 victory in 13 innings Thursday came after three straight defeats at the hands of the Jets had pried Rochester out of second spot into the lower bracket.

In other action Thursday, Louisville put down a rally that had gained Syracuse three runs in the top of the ninth inning to salvage a 4-3 victory over the Chiefs.

Winnipeg's scheduled game at Richmond and Toledo's doubleheader at Tidewater were both rained out.

Mike Ferraro's double and Hank Allen's single put across the winning run in the top of the 13th inning for Rochester after the game had been tied by George Kopacz' solo homer for Columbus in the bottom of the ninth.

Chuck Hartenstein, recalled Thursday by the parent Boston Red Sox, came in in the ninth inning for Louisville with two on and one out to preserve the victory for the Colonels.

Pete Boyd Upsets Bill Zeeh In Ulster County Tennis

KINGSTON

Unseeded Pete Boyd, Kingston High School star, scored what has to be considered as the upset of the Ulster County Tennis Championships, thus far, as he defeated Bill Zeeh, second seed in men's singles, 3-6, 6-0, 6-4.

A large, hushed gallery watched the action yesterday at Forsyth Park as the Kingston High net ace dropped the first set, but came storming back to gain control and the lead in the second set. Pete faces Dick Little today in a semi-final match at 5:30 p.m.

Kitty Samuels and Dick Smith downed Bill Zeeh and Judy Hevesi, 6-4, in the final set continuing from their marathon match from Wednesday. Smith and Samuels had won the first set, 6-3, but dropped the second, 12-10. They will now face defending champions, Kitty Fowler, and Pete Zeeh, Saturday, 3 p.m., for the crown.

Ruth Goldin downed Barbara Badalato, 6-1, 6-0. Ruth moves into the finals and will play the winner of the Kitty Fowler-Kitty Samuels match, which will take place tonight. Ruth's hard serve and forehand proved to be the difference in her straight set victory.

Jay Feit, David Kantor, Richard Neporent, Lee Kalish and Warren Pizak also helped the losers with two ribbons. (Freeman photo by Haines).

Dragon Hanover Is Monticello Victor

MONTICELLO — Eldon Harner has re-written track records throughout the country with his "bread-and-butter" pacer, Deputy Hanover. From the looks of Thursday night's performance with Deputy's half-brother, Dragon Hanover, more records may fall in the future. Two newcomers, First Britt Lobell (Ken Heeney), then Dave Begin with Johnny Chapman's Bret Hanover colt, Title Song, took cracks at the lead. Title Song was in command for the rest of the mile, except where it pays off.

Harner was away slowly with Dragon Hanover, settling in sixth position. He started to make a move at the half and all but "swooped the field" down the backstretch. Dragon appeared to be heading for the lead until he encountered the big Brett colt who not about to give up without a struggle. And struggle they did, for in a whipping, slashing stretch duel, the Harner Lehigh Hanover juvenile outgamed Title Song to the wire by a head for a new record of 2.06.3, paying $9.80 to win.

Sachem's Lad proved that his previous claiming race wins were to be respected as he defeated some classy C-1 pacers last night in 2:06.2. Coming from well off the pace, set first by Flin Con (Dick Yakin), who later broke at the five-eighths, then New Time (John Manzi Jr.) at the quarter, and Once Upona Time (Clint Galbraith) who made the top at the half, Bob Fesh set his steed in motion heading down the backstretch the second time around. New Time opened up daylight at the three-quarter pole and looked like the best from that point. However, Manzi did not count on the closing ability of Sachem's lad, as the Meadow Gene four-year-old paced furiously through the stretch to collar New Time by a length for a $12.40 payoff in his fourth win of the season.

The first race Thursday night produced a major upset as Phil Hayes snuck through on the rail to steal the heat with Billy Steel. One of the three rank outsiders in the field returned a straight mutuel of $66.00 for his maiden score in 2:10.1. It might have been a different story, had not morning line favorite, Joli Byron (Vince Puma) gone off stride at the start. The roan Harold J. three-year-old made up considerable ground to be in contention for most of the mile and the most serious threat to the end.

Bob Fesh went right to the top with Meg W., followed directly by Del Hi's Dream (Sal Sparacino). Sparacino was out and moving with his aged gelding at the half and remained outside for the rest of the mile. Billy Steel was well protected along the rail and squeezed through in time to score by a nose over Del Hi's Dream as a tired Joli Byron hung on for third.

Gainesh Minbar unleased an undeniable closing kick to upset the two favorites in the second race, contested by some of the better two-year- olds on the grounds. First Babbe Byrd (Bob Camper), then Happy Century (Albert Hanna) took shots at the lead to the quarter, at which point John Patterson Sr. made a quick move to reach the top and open up distance approaching the half with 7-5 favorite, Keystone Yodel. The Majestic Hanover filly looked like a comfortable winner from there until Camper started to move in past the three-quarters. It was those two heading down the stretch, but Carl Ernst, coming from well off the pace with his Meadow Skipper colt, was not to be denied as he scored by a head in 2:07.3, reducing his personal record by a full two seconds, for a healthy $24.60 return. The daily double combination of 2 and 3 paid $179.20.

Scarselli, Men's Club Helsmoortel's in Lead

SAUGERTIES — A. J. Scarselli's defeated Ferroxcube, 6-2, behind the six-hit pitching of unbeaten Joe Palumbo (4-0) to move one full game ahead of Michael's Barbers in the White Division of the Saugerties Softball League.

Bob Raucci slammed three doubles and Henry Rua had two singles for Scarselli's, who capitalized on Ferroxcube miscues. Spinnenweber rapped a single and home run for the losers.

Helsmoortel's Insurance, paced by Bud Smith's three RBIs on two singles and a double, outslugged Rotron, 15-9, in a crucial Blue Division game to retain its lead by a game over Boo's Tavern.

Tom Zulick drove in three runs with three singles. Mike Buley had a three-run homer; Jerry Robin, a single and two-run homer and Roy Hooker a single, double and triple for Rotron.

Boo's Tavern trounced Paul's Shell, 9-1, as Don Winkler brought his record to 5 and 4, with an 8-hitter. Peanuts Northrup hit three doubles and Jack Bartells two singles for Boo's. Al Goodwin and Joe Gardner had two hits apiece for Paul's.

Tom Zulick pitched a 5-hit shutout and stroked two singles and a double to lead Helsmoortel's Insurance to a 10-0 romp over Knights of Columbus. Mike Sommers added two singles and a double.

TRAFFIC NORMAL AGAIN IN ROSENDALE

(Freeman Photo by Kruh)

Traffic Normal Again On Rosendale Bridge

By NANCY SULLIVAN

ROSENDALE

There is still "quite a bit to do" but traffic crossing the Rosendale Bridge on Route 32 has assumed the normal two-way traffic pattern once again.

Meanwhile, construction on the Route 209 bridge continues. Frank Harkin, Town of Wawarsing Supervisor, said that he has been told that construction will be completed on the bridge by August 1.

The construction company from Scarsdale had previously announced a July 4 completion date for the project but explained a delay due to the discovery of an inadequate concrete bed on the bridge that had to be replaced.

Harkin also said that 35-miles-an-hour signs will be installed in Continental Road within 10 days. The speed limit there now is 50. He said that the state agreed to his request to post the signs because of the heavy, speeding traffic since work began on the Honk Falls Bridge on Route 55, a state road in Napanoch.

Traffic that normally uses the route and the bridge is being detoured to the town-owned Continental Road, which cuts through residential areas.

The contract for $273,733 was awarded to Lewis and McDowell, Inc., of Scarsdale in 1969 for the rehabilitation of these two bridges — Route 209 over the Vernooy Kill in the Town of Wawarsing and Route 23 over Rondout Creek in Rosendale, as well as a bridge on Route 211 spanning the Wallkill River in the Town of Montgomery.

The firm submitted the only bid to the State Department of Transportation. The project was paid for with funds from the Transportation Bond Issue approved by the New York voters in 1967.

Repair work on the Route 32 Bridge began this spring. According to an engineer, work on railings is still incomplete due to a "material hold up." There is also other minor work to be finished but traffic across the span has reverted back to the original two-way traffic pattern.

Work on the Wawarsing Bridge, also known as the Jenny Brook Bridge, began in the spring. Traffic across the bridge has been proceeding one-way, resulting in long delays during the peak hours of the day.

Construction on the two bridges was originally scheduled for completion on June 17, 1970, as stated in a release from the Lieutenant Governor and Acting Governor Malcolm Wilson in August, 1969. The bridges remained open to traffic while undergoing renovations.

Work on the two spans included highway resurfacing, rebuilt sidewalks, railings replaced, structural steel repainted and concrete surfaces repaired.

Construction costs at the time were estimated at $295,000.

When repair work is completed on the 209 span in the Town of Wawarsing, congestion will probably ease up and the heavy flow of traffic will proceed at a more normal rate.

Presently there are no more delays on the Route 32 Bridge in Rosendale as traffic lights which regulated the vehicles crossing the bridge in a one way traffic pattern have been removed.

Orange Youth Arrested

WALLKILL

A 20-year old Orange County youth was arrested early today on a charge of criminal mischief third degree, after he allegedly drove his car through a park and damaged the lawn.

Troopers B. D. Mitchell and R. J. Faugh of Highland with Town Constable Kenneth Berryann arrested Howard Collett of Drury Lane, Rock Tavern. The youth was arraigned before Gardiner Town Justice Samuel Stokes. He pleaded innocent and was released on $100 bail pending a hearing on Aug. 3.

Zena Homeowners: A Safety Concern

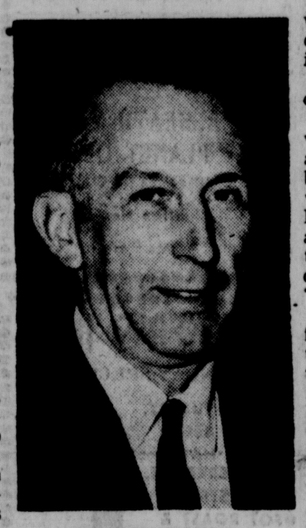

By TOBIE GEERTSEMA

WOODSTOCK

Concerned for the safety of their children, members of Zena Area Homeowners Civic Association packed Town Hall to near capacity Tuesday night to again urge widening and straightening of a curved and narrow section of Vandale Road.

By meeting's end, they seemed satisfied that all aspects of safety connected with the new Zena Elementary School would be handled prior to its fall opening by the Town Board and the highway departments involved.

The Association first brought up the hazards involved for students who will be walking to school several months ago. Members were on hand again this week to reiterate their feeling that road improvements were necessary to give motorists more visibility and students more protection against accidents.

MILTON HOUST

Said Peter DuFresne, Zena Homeowners president: "We have seen no tangible evidence of progress since this hazard was first introduced; hope for a recommitment from the town board and a timetable for completion."

Supervisor Milton Houst assured those concerned the board has gone into the problem at depth; can promise that widening and straightening of the hazardous section of Vandale and installation of needed traffic signs will be completed before Zena scholars head for their new classrooms.

Houst said the town highway department has received permission from residents along the narrow section of the road to cut back brush and trees on the inside of curves; put up guard rails or posts where necessary. He also said the Ulster County Highway Department will complete the installation of needed stop signs, cross bars and crosswalks before the opening of school, on both Vandale and Chestnut Hill roads.

Also promised by the county, he said, is a new bridge to replace the present structure on John Joy Road.

Houst assured DuFresne that Woodstock's highway department (now under the superintendency of Arthur Ray Van Valkenburgh, of Zena, who was appointed this week to fill the vacancy left by the recent death of William Klementis) will start its part of the job by Aug. 1.

DuFresne said his group was encouraged by this news; felt that improvements to be made would eliminate significant hazards. Close to 70 children will be walking to school, he noted, with many in the lower grades. By eliminating critical curves and blind intersections, he said, the possibility of traffic accidents would be hopefully "nipped in the bud."

DuFresne thanked the board for its action in helping to solve the problems posed; praised those homeowners who had made safety measures possible by allowing straightening and widening of the road along their acreage.

And there was praise, too, for the Zena Association from Councilman Paul DeLisio. He said the civic group had helped much to make it possible for the town to solve a problem. Unlike most residents who simply expect the board to handle difficult problems immediately, he said, Association members had offered enough solutions on their own to give the board an opportunity to take direct action.

Zena Homeowners had indeed set an example in that respect. Members had conducted surveys of the number of youngsters walking to school during peak hours of business travel along the roads; had pinpointed the visual hazards and suggested solutions; and had conducted experiments on the distance required to stop a car under various conditions on corners where hazards might occur.

Plans Are Discussed For Rhinebeck Park

RHINEBECK

Members of the newly designated Rhinebeck Recreation Commission have begun to make plans for a new park, with facilities and activities to benefit all ages.

The commission had its final members appointed last week, and is composed of representatives of the town and of the village.

Plans discussed recently include a permanent facility consisting of two tennis courts, a basketball court, and handball court, a horseshoe pitching pit, and picnic tables and grills.

A village-owned piece of land at Park Plaza is under consideration by the commission, if all works out well with the village. Stanley Brose, a member of the commission, reported that they would like the facilities constructed as soon as possible.

The present program is primarily designed for younger children who have much free time during the summer. They have organized play periods in two groups, from Rhinebeck and Rhinecliff.

The only successful wintertime activity has been ice skating at the Dutchess County Fairgrounds. A basketball league used to be conducted but that has folded due to lack of participation. A concern for the adults and older children has prompted this reorientation.

The group agreed that priorities were for the immediate location and construction of park facilities at the sacrifice of some of the planned summer activities, such as a few dances.

The commission will meet again as soon as architectural plans are received, and will then submit these plans to the Town and Village Boards for approval and bids.

Brose mentioned the hope that some facilities might be ready for use as soon as this fall. Winter activities, contingent upon the use of the high school gym, were also discussed.

Two Are Guilty In City Court

KINGSTON

Two city residents were found guilty of disorderly conduct after trial Thursday before Special City Judge George A. Beck, who adjourned sentencing until Thursday, July 30.

They were William E. Jansen and Charlotte H. Jansen of 210 O'Neil Street. They were accused of causing a disturbance among neighbors, authorities said. The arrests were made on June 2.

In other court cases, Eduardo Alvarez, 28, of 783 Broadway, who was charged with driving while intoxicated and driving without a license, had his case adjourned until July 30. He was arrested yesterday on a warrant.

IBM Files Answer to Xerox Suit

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y. UPI — International Business Machines Corp. said it filed an answer Thursday to a patent suit brought by Xerox Corp. in connection with IBM's recently announced copier.

IBM said its copier was developed independently of Xerox and again denied infringing any Xerox patent or wrongful use of any confidential information.

Xerox brought the suit in U.S. District Court in New York City.

In its answer, IBM noted that Xerox withdrew from its suit 11 of 22 patents it originally claimed were infringed.

IBM asked the court to declare the 11 remaining patents invalid and not infringed, and also asked for a ruling that Xerox patents were unenforceable because of "Xerox's misuses of its patent position and technical information."

The alleged misuse was "an attempt to prevent others from entering the plain paper electrostatic office copier field, thereby denying customers a choice as to product and price" IBM said.

IBM contended Xerox's basic patents have expired but that the company has tried to bar competition by patenting a large number of minor variations of the methods and materials used in its copiers in an attempt to re-establish its patent position.

Partial Cave-in Of Runway Slows Albany Traffic

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Air traffic in and out of Albany County Airport was hampered several hours Thursday after a pilot discovered a portion of the main north - south runway had caved in.

American and Allegheny airlines cancelled afternoon flights and Mohawk airlines lightened its flights to take advantage of the shorter east-west runway.

Among passengers inconvenienced was Miss America of 1970, Pamela Anne Eldred of Michigan. An Allegheny spokesman said she was on a flight from Washington to Albany via Philadelphia which had to put down in Hartford, Conn. The flight passengers were bused to Albany.

Other income flights and some passengers scheduled to leave Albany were routed to New York, Syracuse, and Boston.

A watch supervisor at the suburban airport said the runway surface apparently had been washed away by water that collected underneath.

The depression was about one foot deep in the 6,000 foot macadam runway.

EMPLOYMENT

ATTENTION JOB APPLICANTS
The Daily Freeman does not knowingly accept Help Wanted ads from employers covered by the Fair Labor Standards Act if they offer less than the legal minimum wage or fail to pay at least time and one-half for overtime hours. The minimum wage for employment covered by the FISA prior to the 1966 Amendments is $1.85 an hour with overtime pay required after 40 hours a week. Jobs covered as a result of the 1966 Amendments require $1.30 an hour minimum with overtime pay required after 40 hours a week. For specific information contact the Wage and Hour Office of the U. S. Department of Labor, 331 Gerard Ave., Bronx, N. Y. 10452 WYandotte 2-1235.
IMPORTANT NOTICE: The New York State Law against Discrimination and the Federal Civil Rights Act of 1964 prohibits discrimination in employment because of sex unless based on a bona fide occupational qualification. Help Wanted and Situation Wanted advertisements are arranged in columns captioned "Male" and "Female" for the convenience of readers and are not intended as an unlawful limitation or discrimination based on sex.

Dear Abby

Farewell to His Arms

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

(© 1970 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: I have gone with one man for the past 10 years. He couldn't marry me for the first 5 years because he had to support his mother. Well, his mother died, so he found another reason. He wanted to be clear of all his debts. Next he wanted to buy a boat! (I let him have $1,400.)

Anyway, he says I'm the only one for him and in the meantine he is getting awfully hard to find. Last Friday night he rushed me home (he said he had a "headache") and said he wasn't going to do much on the week-end. I didn't hear from him, and his car was gone. He still owes me $1,400 which he never even mentions. I have cried my eyes out, Abby, and I can't eat or sleep. He knows how much I love him. What should I do now?

ONE MAN WOMAN

DEAR ONE: Collar the heel and ask him what and (who) is new? If it's the end of the romance, it's better to know it now than to kid yourself for another 10 years. Also be prepared to write off the $1,400 as "tuition in the school of experience." And finally, brace yourself for a farewell to arms. His.

DEAR ABBY: I am 20 and my girl friend is 19. She's a beautiful girl and a very nice one, but her pucker power is zero. In other words she doesn't know how to kiss. I don't want to hurt her feelings, but maybe if you put this in your column she'll see it.

JACK THE LIPPER

DEAR JACK: Maybe the "power failure" is yours. Check your transmitter. You could have a dead battery.

DEAR ABBY: This is for that nurse who complained because whenever she appeared in her uniform in a supermarket, cafeteria or while waiting for a bus, strangers would ask her for medical advice: To wear the uniform in such places, not only degrades its symbolization, but it also renders the cost of such uniforms ineligible as a tax deduction.

A NURSE IN TUTTLE, IDAHO

DEAR NURSE: You are correct, of course. And I imagine no one gets away with very much in Tuttle, Idaho.

DEAR ABBY: A letter appeared in your column from a bride, asking whether to invite her father and his "new" wife to her wedding. The bride said that since there had been ill feelings about her parents' divorce and her father's remarriage, the "new" wife would probably have the good taste to decline.

You said, "And what if she doesn't? Don't risk inviting anyone anywhere hoping they'll decline. They just may accept."

That's exactly what happened to me. My father remarried shortly after he and my mother were divorced. Not wanting to do anything in poor taste, in planning my wedding my mother and I sent an invitation to my father and his wife. They accepted promptly; Thus, the day that should have been the happiest in my life was ruined. The tension at my wedding could have been cut with a knife. My stomach was so tied in knots that I thought I was going to throw up on the way down the aisle. If I had it to do over again, I wouldn't even have invited my father. I would have asked my brother to give me away. Keep up the good work, Abby.

CARROLL RIGHTER'S horoscope

GENERAL TENDENCIES: You can now make the changes that have been in your thoughts and with more than usual possibility of success. But be sure you do so tactfully. Show others in your joint association that you possess wisdom and understanding.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Take care of current activities in a conscientious and efficient manner. Don't alienate any associate. There are appealing pleasures at your fingertips, make the evening an enjoyable one.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Find a better way to get your work done today and show coworkers you will make any changes that are necessary. Some secret desire has to be handled in a new way to gain right results. Be wise.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Come to perfect understanding with friends today while displaying a cooperative mood. Going to the social brings the personal desires you want. Be generous with the one you love.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Find the right ideas to put in operation where your career is concerned and you advance more quickly. Show higher-ups you are efficient. Attend civic meeting. Be helpful and have fun, too.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) A new and interesting field will make you feel you are really accomplishing something. Make a good impression on higherups with your fine mentality. Be sure you are tactful.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) You can handle many small duties now so make the new week more enjoyable. Plan with loved one to be at the place and with person you admire. Be clever.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Ideal day to handle association matters, especially with one who is dynamic and powerful. Come to a meeting of minds. Attend amusements you like with a good friend this evening.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) You have much to accomplish and it takes determination. Be artistic. Those who expect you to do an excellent job are numerous. Do not disappoint them.

SAGGITARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Bring out your finest qualities by attending fine recreations you really like. Relieve those tensions you are under at this time. Show you have tact.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Do your utmost to please kin who are feeling depressed. Bolster their spirits. Use tact and relieve own tensions as well. Avoid the social in the evening.

AQUARIUS (Jan 21 to Feb. 19) You are feeling very alert and can be of great assistance to others just at this time. Do so. Make appointmhents that are necessary and keep them on time. Enter new course of activity.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Keep rooted to financial affairs and make certain not to invest unwisely. Find the best methods to add to present assets. Be careful of strangers this evening.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will be one of those interesting young people who wants to know all about everything, to the point of distraction. This is only because there is a fertile mind here and an inquisitive brain. Be sure to send to college, but teach to finish one project before going to another, or your progeny could become one of these rolling stones that gathers no moss.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

Jean Adams' TEEN FORUM

"IDEAL," BUT: (Q) The girl I go with is pretty and has a nice personality. She has many friends. We really make an ideal couple—but we argue about one thing.

I think we're too young to go steady. She thinks it's perfectly all right We're both 15, and it seems to me that we should be dating others, meeting new people, and making friends.—Tied Down.

(A) You sound as if this steady arrangement wasn't your idea in the beginning. Whether it was or not, it's not working for you, so you should drop it or change it.

Be kind, of course, but put it on the line with your friend. You two should either quit dating altogether, or each of you should be free to date others.

If you decide on the free-to-date-others plan and it doesn't work, then break up completely.

ADMIRER: (Q) Last fall I met another girl whom I consider to be a truly great person. As months go by I find myself admiring her more and more.

I send her notes and presents regularly. She says I shouldn't because it makes her feel guilty. She says she doesn't have the time or money to give anything in return. I ask her to come over, but she always says no. How can I get her to be a closer friend?—Truly Interested.

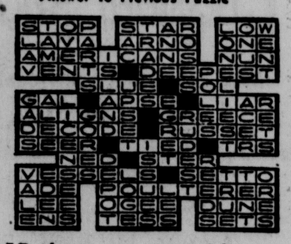

(A) Too few know the great joy of giving. You apparently do. In this you are fortunate. But no matter how much we like to give, we cannot buy friendship with gifts.

This girl recognizes that you are asking for more than she is able to or willing to give in return. So quit sending her gifts and notes. Stay friendly, but don't try to be a special friend.

Subtle Deception With False Cards

By Oswald and James Jacoby

Some players false-card for the sheer joy of doing it. They follow suit with the queen any time they hold doubleton queen-jack and, in general, their false cards are about as effective as buckshot against a Sherman tank.

The experts also make these blatant false cards on occasion but they do much better when they get a chance to misinform declarer by a delicate series of false-card plays.

It took four false cards by East to trap South but they sure succeeded.

East took his ace of clubs and returned the suit. South went right up with his king, cashed his ace of spades and led a diamond. West went up with his ace and East produced false-card No. 1—the six of diamonds. Nothing sensational, just a quiet six-spot.

West cashed his queen of clubs and East made the quiet false-discard of the eight of diamonds. West led the deuce of diamonds and East continued his campaign of deception by dropping the 10.

South led dummy's deuce of trumps and false-card No. 4 hit the table. East played the nine! South finessed the queen.

As you can all see, South can get to dummy by ruffing his last diamond to take a second trump finesse, but what would you do after East's plays? This South thought awhile and finally decided that East was surely out of diamonds, so that he would be able to overruff dummy. Therefore, South decided that East's original distribution had been 6-2-3-2 and that the play of the ace of trumps would drop East's king.

Face Lifting for TV Shows

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — This is the time of the year when, in preparation for the fall season, the returning shows go in for a face lifting.

A few members of the cast depart and new ones are added. These and other cosmetic changes are done to keep viewer interest from lagging when new shows debut.

Frances Bavier, the last of the original cast from the time Andy Griffith founded the series 10 years ago, departs "Mayberry R.F.D." and is being replaced as housekeeper by Alice Ghostley.

"I'm afraid I'm not going to be a very efficient housekeeper," said Miss Ghostley, who also is a bumbling witch on "Bewitched." She will play star Ken Berry's cousin who retires after 25 years in the WACs.

"Mission: Impossible" undergoes yet another change in its fifth season as it moves to Saturday night, where it originated, and gets a new cast member. Lesley Warren joins the IMF forces as a beautiful agent. In addition, the whole crew is supposed to be more human this year and less mechanically perfect. They may even make a few mistakes.

On "Bracken's World," that hokey drama school is being tossed out and Bracken will appear for the first time in the person of Leslie Nielsen.

The show's first year dwelled on Hollywood's past, but this year promises to be more contemporary.

Walter Brennan is being added to the cast of "To Rome With Love," which moves to 7:30 p.m. Tuesdays. He will play an Iowa farmer who sells his land to live in Italy with his widower son-in-law and granddaughters.

Diahann Carroll gets a new boy friend in "Julia," played by former football player Fred Williamson. Nurse Hannah Yarby, played by Lurene Tuttle, also gets married to Cesar Romero.

Doris Day deserts the farm and moves into an apartment, where her new landlady will be Kaye Ballard.

Nancy Walker joins "Family Affair" as a rather messy, talkative housecleaner.

David Canary departs the cast of "Bonanza" and will be replaced by 15-year-old Mitch Vogel, who was in "The Reivers." On "High Chaparral," Mark Slade leaves the nest and the new young male interest is Rudy Ramos. Both were victims of "aging."

"There were so many stories we couldn't tell because we didn't have young people," said David Dortort, who is executive producer for both shows.

The biggest face-lifting of all is being made on the "Virginian." The show is being retitled "The Men From Shiloh" and will have three rotating leads, similar to "Name of the Game." They will be James Drury, Doug McClure and a newcomer, Lee Majors. Stewart Granger rides in as the new owner of the Shiloh ranch and will appear in all three segments.

Cynthia Lowry is on vacation.

Fourth Phase of Nixon Program

1st Marines Begin Vietnam Withdrawal

SAIGON (UPI)—Lead elements of the U.S. 1st Marine Division have begun leaving Vietnam as part of President Nixon's "Phase Four" withdrawal of 50,000 more American GIs from the war zone, military spokesmen said today.

An official announcement said Leathernecks from two engineer battalions and one bridge company assigned to the division are in the process of leaving Da Nang for Camp Pendleton, Calif. The three units total 1,625 men.

Military sources said some 1st Marine Division units will be kept in the war zone past Oct. 15, the date President Nixon has set for completion of the fourth phase of his so-called "Vietnamization" program.

President Nixon has promised to remove 100,000 more Americans between mid-October and the spring of 1971, leaving only support troops as the South Vietnamese army takes over the fighting.

The Nixon administration's vow to keep U.S. casualties at a minimum during the "Vietnamization" process was reflected Thursday in the abandonment of fire support base Ripcord, where 61 American paratroopers had been killed and 354 wounded since July 1.

The base, overlooking a vital Communist infiltration route on the Laotian border, was judged too costly to maintain despite U.S. Command reports that the U.S. 101st Airborne Division troopers had inflicted "very heavy" losses on the guerrillas there.

Some Allied commanders have expressed fears the substantial Marine withdrawals from the northern quarter would reduce Allied strength in the strategic region to a dangerously low level.

Two weeks ago the South Vietnamese high command moved a 3,000-man government leatherneck brigade to the area near Da Nang in the first substantial Allied troop reinforcement there in more than two years. A Communist offensive is expected in the region.

Swarms of helicopters swirled through a fusillade of fire Thursday to evacuate the paratroopers from fire support base Ripcord near the A Shau Valley.

One helicopter was shot down, three GIs were killed and 20 wounded in the abandonment of the besieged hilltop base established July 1 to bombard the Communist supply operation in the northern end of the valley.

The "Screaming Eagle" division kept Ripcord's two sister bases in operation six and 16 miles southeast of Ripcord along the A Shau Valley, for they have not been under constant attack like the abandoned outpost was.

Five U.S. helicopters have been shot down at Ripcord.

In a statement announcing the base had been abandoned, the U.S. Command said North Vietnamese forces suffered "very heavy casualties and material losses" around Ripcord. No figures were given.

A North Vietnamese ambush that killed 12 paratroopers and wounded 51 outside the base Wednesday apparently led to the decision to give up the outpost. The ambushers left behind no bodies.

Demolition experts blew up the base's bunkers and destroyed its bug guns Thursday during the evacuation. American warplanes carried out a constant stream of strikes against suspected guerrilla positions in the surrounding mountainous jungle.

U.S., Korea Talks...An Agreement

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States apparently has agreed to stabilize its air defense of South Korea while reducing American ground troops there this year, according to Pentagon officials.

Their intepretation results from a vaguely worded U.S.-South Korean communique issued after high-level talks in Honolulu.

To dispel any doubts about the troop withdrawal, American diplomatic officials said in Seoul Thursday "there is no change" in the announced U.S. intention to move ahead with reduction of its forces in Korea this year.

It is expected the United States will gradually withdraw about 20,000 of the 60,000 U.S. military men now based in South Korea.

Before the Honolulu conference, South Korean leaders said their prime need is help in shoring up air defenses because their air force is outnumbered heavily by a more modern North Korean air force.

According to the conference-ending communique Thursday, the American and South Korean delegations "agreed to develop a plan under which certain U.S. aircraft can be shifted to bases in the Republic of Korea from other U.S. Pacific bases."

Pentagon officials indicated this means a number of U.S. Air Force units stationed in Korea on short-tour rotation from the United States, Okinawa and Japan will be supplanted with units assigned to Korea on a longer term basis.

This, it is felt, will stabilize and strengthen the South Korean air defenses.

There was no indication of an actual increase in the number of U.S. warplanes in Korea.

All told, the United States has about 140 aircraft based in Korea, more than 80 of them tactical jet fighters. Virtually all of the fighters are F4 Phantoms, considered more than a match for most of North Korea's Soviet-made MIG jets.

The United States has provided a squadron of 18 F4D Phantoms to Seoul within the past year. South Korea also has about 45 modern F5 "Freedom Fighters." But the bulk of South Korea's 250-plane air force is made up of 20-year-old aircraft.

Draft Law Reform...Action Put Off

WASHINGTON (UPI) —President Nixon's plan to reform the draft law by ending all future student deferments will not be acted on during the current session of Congress, it appeared today.

Rep. L. Mendel Rivers, D-S.C., chairman of the House Armed Services Committee, has decided to put off any action on the proposed draft revision until after the current election year, it was learned. He has referred the matter to a subcommittee where it will probably remain unless the Senate exerts some extraordinary pressure — regarded as unlikely.

Rivers revealed his course of action Thursday by telling the House that a subcommittee has started "a review of the entire draft law."

Rivers' action was supported by the House Republican leadership. House GOP Leader Gerald R. Ford of Michigan, for one, has said he would have to be convinced before he would favor an elimination of student deferments.

The immediate result of Rivers' decision, if it prevails, was that young men entering college next fall would be assured of deferments. Nixon's proposal would not have affected deferments already held by students.

The current draft law does not expire until next June 30, and the Nixon administration has indicated it would seek an extension of the statute beyond that date because it would cost too much money to switch over to an all-volunteer Army that soon.

In the House, however, 61 members from both parties introduced legislation Thursday to terminate the draft when the present law expires, and establish a volunteer force. The measure was introduced by Rep. William A. Steiger, R-Wis., and Allard K. Lowenstein, D-N.Y.

Thirteen Senate members, led by Sen. Mark O. Hatfield, R-Ore., have introduced a similar end-the-draft measure as an amendment to a $19.2 billion military procurement bill which went to the floor today.

The proposal also would authorize a raise in servicemen's salaries to a level high enough to keep an adequate force in uniform.

Anticrime Bill Approved

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon's anticrime bill for the nation's capital, complete with the controversial "no-knock" and pretrial detention provisions, has become the first of the White House's crime fighting proposals to clear Congress.

Senate approval on a 54 - 33 vote Thursday climaxed a week of debate marked by charges that parts of the bill are repressive and violate constitutional rights.

Most of those against passage were liberals, but Sen. Sam J. Ervin, D-N.C., a stict constitutionalist, led the fight against the bill, passed by the House last week 332 to 64. Ervin called passage "a victory for repressive criminal procedures."

Chiefly in dispute were sections permitting pretrial detention of defendants judged likely to endanger community safety and authorizing police to enter homes without knocking while executing some search and arrest warrants.

Opponents also proested provisions for expanded police wiretapping under court orders, adult trials for juveniles charged with violent crimes such as murder and rape, and mandatory minimum sentences for second offenders convicted of crimes of violence while armed.

Other parts of the bill providing for a reorganization of the local courts, more judges, an expanded bail agency, and a public defender system were not disputed.

The measure was in line with recommendations submitted last year by Nixon, who described Washington in his 1968 election campaign as "the crime capital of the world."

Other administration crime-fighting proposals still before Congress include measures to renew federal aid to local police agencies, revised penalties for narcotics related crimes, combat organized crime, and apply preventive detention to all federal jurisdictions.

Nixon has strongty criticized the legislators for not moving faster on these measures.

Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana said he believed sufficient safeguards had been written into the preventive detention and no-knock search provisions to enable them to withstand attacks on their constitutionality.

Sen. Harold E. Hughes, D-Iowa, said "the pivotal question is whether or not repressive measures such as no-knock, preventive detention and mandatory sentencing are necessary to make our society law-abiding.

"I believe we are drifting into a trend of thinking in this country that is forgetful of the value of our liberties and how they were won and that places simplistic faith in the mistaken notion that force and repression are the only routes to achieving law and order," Hughes said.

Dock Strike in Britain May Spoil Tons of Meat

LONDON (UPI) —The British government received urgent warnings today that thousands of tons of imported meat will rot unless it is unloaded in the country's strikebound ports.

The National Federation of Meat Traders said in a telegram to the Ministry of Agriculture as the dock strike entered its 10th day that 4,500 tons of prime Argentinian beef is in danger of spoiling.

Government officials told housewives not to panic and said meat supplies were satisfactory.

Police in the Northern Ireland port of Portavogie increased security at the docks following the outbreak of fighting Thursday, the first connected with the dispute.

Police said about 60 striking longshoremen invaded the small port and battled briefly with fishermen who have been ferrying farm produce to Scotland in defiance of the strikers.

The longshoremen threw ham and bacon off a trailer into the harbor and then pushed the trailer into the water. Later they moved on to nearby Ballyhalbert and overturned a container truck, littering the road with broken eggs.

The government continued to hold back from use of the 36,000 troops it has alerted to be ready to unload perishable food cargoes. Officials said it would not use them until it is seen whether the strikers follow a call by top union officials to unload perishable foods themselves.

Officials said it now is almost certain no troops will be sent into the docks before Monday at earliest.

The three-man court of inquiry named by the governments to study the rights and wrongs of the dispute completed its hearings Thursday. Chairman Lord Parson, said it would report its findings "as soon as possible." Officials said it might do so by Monday.

Denials From Cereal Manufactures

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Major breakfast cereal manufacturers have denied the allegations of an independent food researcher that their products are "almost devoid" of essential nutrients.

The major manufacturers — General Mills, General Foods, the Kellogg Co., and Quaker Oats —issued statements quoting their own experts and attacking the standards used by Robert J. Choate in ranking the nutritive value of the top 60 cereals.

Choate told a Senate consumer subcommittee Thursday that 40 of the 60 products, including the most advertised brands, were full of "empty calories" and almost useless nutritionally.

According to Choate, none of the four most heavily advertised cereals contain any A, C, or D vitamins and have only minimal amounts of other essential nutrients.

The Kellogg Co. was most personal in its attack on Choate's testimony.

"Civil engineer Choate's theories and so-called formula might be meaningful or applicable for digging a mine shaft, but they are completely valueless as a yardstick for measuring the nutritional values of any food —not just cereal," the Kellogg statement said.

General Mills said Choate's list "is in contradiction to the findings of many competent and responsible scientists in nutrition studies carried out for many years."

General Foods called cereals "one of the best sources of nutrition for consumers of all ages."

Found Raft Not From Red Plane

NEW YORK (UPI)—The U.S. Coast Guard recovered an empty life raft off the southern tip of Greenland Thursday, but said it did not come from a Soviet plane which disappeared over the Atlantic last Saturday with 28 aboard.

The yellow inflatable rubber raft "has been in the water for some time," a Coast Guard spokesman said. "Marine life is growing on it and the color has faded."

Soviet spokesmen at air control in Keflavik, Iceland, have confirmed that the raft is not Russian, the Coast Guard said.

A single word, "Barakuda" is written on the raft. "There is a small Polish fishing vessel with that name," the Coast Guard said, but added that vessel has not reported any trouble.
